EDUCATION IN NEW BRUNSWICK

BOARDS OF EDUCATION

As a result of the implementation of the New Brunswick Schools Act, New Brunswick has been divided into 33 school districts, replacing 422 school districts in operation previous to January 1, 1967. It is planned that, eventually, each school district will comprise one or more senior high schools at the geographical centre of the district or in the centre of population. Junior high schools also will be similarly located, and elementary schools will be established at points convenient to an adequate number of pupils.

The administration of public school education in each of the thirty-three school districts is the responsibility of a board of school trustees, two-thirds of whose members are elected, and one-third appointed by the Lieutenant-Governor-in-Council.

The following are school districts containing large cities, listed alphabetically.

Schools for the Blind, Mute and Deaf

New Brunswick

Provision is made for the education of Deaf, Mute and Blind children of New Brunswick at approved Institutions outside the Province.

The cost of educating Blind and Deaf Children is borne solely by the provincial government. This change in method of payment became effective as of January 1, 1967.

In September 1961 the Interprovincial School for the Education of the Deaf was opened in Amherst, Nova Scotia. This is a joint project between the provinces of New Brunswick and Nova Scotia. Students from Prince Edward Island and Newfoundland are admitted on a tuition basis. This school, at the present time, is for English-speaking students only.

English-speaking blind students from New Brunswick attend a School for the Blind in Halifax, Nova Scotia.

French-speaking students are educated at approved institutions in the Province of Quebec.

(See Nova Scotia listing below).

NEWFOUNDLAND

Newfoundland has no schools for the Blind but the Provincial Government makes substantial contributions towards the cost of tuition and board for the education of blind children at the Halifax School for the blind. In 1964 a school for the deaf was opened in temporary quarters at Fort Peppernell. This has now been removed to the former R.C.A.F. station at Torbay. It is capable of accommodating over 100 students.

EDUCATION IN NOVA SCOTIA

BOARDS OF EDUCATION

For administrative purposes in education the Province of Nova Scotia is divided into 66 municipal units—24 rural or non-urban, 39 towns, and 3 cities. The local authority for each rural unit is the municipal school board; for each town or city unit, the board of school commissioners. Thirteen regional vocational schools are administered by the Minister of Education and locally by regional vocational school boards. Any combination of municipal or urban boards may co-operate in the operation of a regional school attended by pupils from their several jurisdictions, in which case a regional school board, consisting of members appointed by the co-operating boards plus members appointed by the Governor-in-Council, is established to administer the regional school. There are twelve such regional boards.

Municipal school boards consist of seven members of whom four are appointed by the municipal council and three by the Lieutenant-Governor in Council. The term of appointment is three years. Urban boards of school commissioners consist of three members appointed by the city or town council and two members appointed by the Lieutenant-Governor in Council. The term is three years.

Remaining from the older structure of school administration are approximately 800 rural or village boards of trustees, elected by ratepayers of school sections averaging about four square miles in area. The municipal school board, which is the ultimate budgetary authority, may at its discretion variously delegate certain of its functions to the local boards of trustees in its area.

Enabling legislation of 1968 makes provision for the eventual replacement of all of the above-mentioned authorities by amalgamated school boards, each of which would assume jurisdiction over all public educational facilities—elementary, secondary, vocational and continuing—in its "Amalgamation Area." The legislation is permissive, and amalgamation is to take place after full agreement has been reached among the municipal councils of a designated area.

Of the above-mentioned boards, the only ones directly elective are the boards of trustees of school sections. These are elected by an annual meeting of the ratepayers of the section.

EDUCATION IN ONTARIO

BOARDS OF EDUCATION

In 1968 the Ontario Department of Education, under Bill 44, An Act to amend the Secondary Schools and Boards of Education Act, provided for a total of 76 elected Boards of Education with jurisdiction over a continuous and integrated program of elementary and secondary education. In Southern Ontario there are 38 administrative counties, four defined cities and six municipalities of Metropolitan Toronto. Designation of the remaining 28 school divisions in Northern Ontario under similar boards of education is contained in Ontario Regulation 283/68: School Divisions in the Territorial Districts.

The total effect of Bill 168, An Act to amend The Separate Schools Act, additional provisions already contained in The Separate Schools Act, the Regulations made under this Act, and The Metropolitan Separate School Board Act, is to provide for 31 zones in Southern Ontario and 18 in Northern Ontario under the jurisdiction of county or district Roman Catholic combined separate school boards.

In addition to these larger units of administration there will remain approximately 110 boards to administer school sections and zones in remote areas or on crown lands.

Following are the boards of education with schools for the six municipalities of Metropolitan Toronto, and the four defined cities and a list of other Boards and officials.

(Areas and numbers in brackets after names of Boards indicate the Administrative Regions in which the Boards are located and correspond with the Administrative Region section following lists of Boards)

TRADITION AND PROGRESS AT THE UNIVERSITY OF GUELPH

Ontario's newest university—the University of Guelph—is founded upon professional colleges with a century of tradition. Incorporated in 1964, the University of Guelph is made up of the Ontario Agricultural College, the Ontario Veterinary College, Macdonald Institute and Wellington College of Arts and Science.

The Ontario Agricultural College initiated the Guelph campus in 1874, with Macdonald Institute being established in 1903. The longest tradition belongs to the Ontario Veterinary College, which was established in Toronto in 1862, and moved to Guelph campus in 1922.

Prior to the founding of the University, the Colleges were affiliated with the University of Toronto for academic purposes, and administered and financed by the Ontario Department of Agriculture.

Wellington College came to the Guelph campus at the time the University was founded. Its impact in the area of humanities and social sciences is playing a major role in the academic program of all Colleges.

The University is the only one in Ontario operating on a three semester system with three enrolment dates—fall, winter, and spring. Many degree programs are offered throughout the year, permitting students the option of taking one and a half years of conventional study within a calendar year. The University has also pioneered admitting students directly from grade 13 in April.

The University of Guelph currently offers eight undergraduate degrees as well as graduate degrees. Undergraduate degrees include: Bachelor of Arts; Bachelor of Landscape Architecture; Bachelor of Household Science; Bachelor of Science; Bachelor of Science (Agriculture); Bachelor of Science (Engineering); Bachelor of Science (Physical Education); Doctor of Veterinary Medicine.

Graduate degrees include the Master of Arts, Master of Science and Doctor of Philosophy, as well as an intern residency program in Veterinary Medicine leading to a graduate diploma.

In addition, the University offers study programs leading to the Diploma in Agriculture and the Diploma in Horticulture.

The University will confer degrees in arts, science, business administration and education.

Schools for the Deaf and Blind

By arrangement between the two provinces, blind children from Prince Edward Island are maintained and educated at the Halifax School for the Blind in Halifax, Nova Scotia.

A class for deaf and hard of hearing children was opened at Charlottetown in September 1959. There are now two such classes operating in Charlottetown. Deaf persons requiring training of a vocational or technical nature are educated in Nova Scotia or elsewhere, as it is not economically feasible to provide this service in P.E.I.

EDUCATION IN QUEBEC

BOARDS OF EDUCATION

In July 1964, Québec organized a representative body called the Superior Council of Education. This organism, consultative in educational planning matters, has the task of assuring liaison between the public and the Department of Education, as well as helping to keep the educational system in harmony with social evolution.

A special press conference, called by the Minister of Education on September 10, 1964, publicized the launching of Operation 55, the object of which was to contribute towards the realization of plans to create a network of regional schools. The sum of the means brought into play to achieve this end constituted Operation 55, so called since it was to lead to: the creation of 55 regional school boards in Québec; the setting up of 55 regional school planning committees; the building of the schools necessary to complete 55 regional networks

ADMINISTRATIVE RESPONSIBILITIES

The system of education in Québec comprises three large sectors of responsibility: the public sector, the government sector and the private sector.

PUBLIC SECTOR

The public sector groups together the schools under the control of local and regional school boards. There are over fifteen hundred school boards throughout Québec. These local school boards are responsible for education at the elementary level, that is, from the first to the seventh year of schooling. Exceptions are the Montréal Catholic School Commission, the Protestant School Board of Greater Montréal, as well as the Québec Catholic School Commission and the Protestant School Board of Greater Québec which, in addition to elementary education, also teach at the secondary level.

Regional school boards number 64: 55 Roman Catholic and 9 Protestant. Regional school boards teach 8th, 9th, 10th, 11th and sometimes 12th year pupils.

To the above we must add some thirty general and vocational colleges (CEGEP) which impart post-secondary education. The number of these colleges will be increased as facilities and staff become available.

School boards are generally composed of five members, elected for a period of three years. In the cities of Montréal and Québec, the Catholic School Commissions consist of seven members each, four appointed by the Lieutenant Governor in Council and three by the Archbishop. The term is four years in Montréal; three in Québec City.

Each school region takes in an average population of 40,000 to 50,000, spread over a territory within a radius of twenty miles from the regional centre. Local school boards deciding to come under the regional board for purposes of education at the secondary level, name three delegates to the regional school board. These delegates choose among themselves the members and chairman of the regional school board. A regional school board consists of five members in the case of a regional board made up of five local school boards or less. In other cases, the number of members may go as high as nine.

GOVERNMENT SECTOR

The government sector comprises institutions set up or run by the government, such as normal schools for boys, trades schools, institutes of technology, specialized institutes (applied arts, marine school, papermaking, etc.) teaching of fine arts, conservatories of music, dramatic arts, agricultural schools, apprenticeship centres, fisheries school and forestry school, etc. Those schools are gradually integrated to school commissions, to CEGEP or to Universities.

Like the schools of the local and regional boards, the institutions of the government sector are public, open to all, but are under the control of the government departments concerned, rather than under school commissioners.

PRIVATE SECTOR

Finally, the private sector comprises institutions of learning belonging to various private groups: normal schools for girls, private secondary schools, private vocational schools, commercial schools, household science institutes, classical colleges and universities.

Private institutions are not limited, as are institutions in the public sector, to a particular level of instruction. For example, there are private schools giving elementary and secondary courses. On the other hand, most classical colleges teach at the secondary and college levels.

The existing private institutions are not obliged to associate themselves with regional school boards in order to give courses at the secondary level. They are free to opt for the status of "associate" institutions, or to keep their status as private institutions of learning. Should they become associated, they are fully financed by the regional school board; they receive direct grants from the government if they remain private institutions. This policy of "associate" institutions was announced by the Minister of Education in April 1966.

THE TRADE MARKS ACT

1-2 Eliz. II Chap. 49

by Cecil C. Kent F.P.T.I.C. of Cecil C. Kent & Associates, Patent Attorneys and Trade Mark Agents, Toronto and Winnipeg.

(1) WHAT A TRADE MARK IS:—"Trade Mark" means a mark so used by someone as to distinguish the wares or services he sells, leases, hires or performs, from those of others. There are four kinds:

(i) "General" marks: These, here so designated, are the most prevalent. Usually words including slogans, designs, and labels, they also sometimes consist of the distinctive surface treatment upon an article or its container, colour combination and arrangement for instance. Such a trade mark may, perhaps on occasion also reside in the "get-up" of premises or a distinguishing characteristic of same—a landmark, of a snack chain for example.

(ii) Certification Mark: May not be used by owner. Owner may only license it to approved users. The well-known design of a ball of wool for pure woolen goods is an example. Many such marks are being adopted in franchising such as FRUIT OF THE LOOM for various dry-goods lines. A mark originally used by the owner (as in the example just mentioned) can be changed into a Certification Mark, and vice versa.

(iii) Distinguishing Guises: These are trade marks on the shape of wares, containers, or mode of wrapping or packaging wares when the shape or mode is to distinguish from others—often thought of as the get-up of the wares (in distinction to the use of this expression in connection with services (see Sec. 1 (i)).

(iv) Proposed Marks: These are marks not yet in use but intended to be in virtue of an application for registration having been filed. By such filing, one obtains an option upon the mark (see also Sec. 17). Note that an application for a Certification Mark (Sec. 1 (ii)) can also be filed as a Proposed Mark.

(2) REGISTRATION:—From the above it is correct to infer that "common law" trade marks according to at least Sec. 1 (i) can exist, i.e., without being registered. Suit may be brought to prevent confusing use (Sec. 7 (b) and Sec. 6) by another, especially for the "passing off" by one trader of wares so marked by him as if the wares of another. However, only by registration can a registered owner secure exclusive rights to his mark for the whole of Canada and bring proceedings for "infringement". By this is meant, obtaining a Court Order to stop using a confusing trade mark whether adopted knowingly or not. The reason is clear. Anyone, before adopting a trade mark can have a search made. The records of the Trade Marks Office are inspectable, unlike with patents, right from the time of filing an application to its registration. Other important reasons for registration exist. See particularly under Secs. 14 and 15. The term of registration is fifteen years renewable as long as in use. Before Proposed trade marks mature to registration, use of the mark in Canada must be shown to have commenced.

(3) "USE" IN TRADE MARK LAW:—To be a trade mark, it must be used—except under Sec. 1 (iv). Use has a particular meaning in Trade Mark law which is—that the mark must be so associated with the wares to which it applies by (a) appearing thereon, (or else on the packages containing same), or (b) being in any way so associated with the wares that notice of such association is given at the time of the transfer of the property in or possession of such wares, in the normal course of trade, to whom such property or possession is transferred (Act, Sec. 4). As to services, trade mark use arises from its display in performing or advertising the services. The distribution of trademarked samples was held not to be "use" according to the Act. An invoice identifying the wares by the trade mark was held "use."

(4) MAKING KNOWN:—If a trade mark is not used in Canada, it can be registered by a foreigner who has used it in a Country of the Union (see Sec. 9) on the basis of his having made it "well known" in Canada by (A) distribution of the wares in Canada, or (B) advertisement of the wares or services in association with the mark (i) in printed publications circulated in Canada in ordinary commerce or (ii) by radio or TV received in Canada among potential dealers or users of such wares or services, (Act, Sec. 5). Being well-known locally in Canada has been held insufficient. It appears to be sound practice for such as well-known U.S. and U.K. retailers, hotels, etc., to secure trade mark registration in Canada of their firm-names as far as possible.

(5) ADOPTIVELY REGISTRABLE TRADE MARKS:—Under this heading is meant here those trade marks which qualify for registration promptly following commencement of use or making well-known in Canada. To be so registrable, the mark must not be "primarily merely" (generally, "principally only") the name or surname of one who is living or has died in the last thirty years. Further it must not, as depicted, written or sounded, be either clearly descriptive or deceptively misdescriptive in English or French of the character or quality of the wares or services, or the conditions of, or the persons employed in their production, or of their place of origin. In addition, it must not be the name in any language of the wares or services, (Act Sec. 12 (1).)

But the invented trade mark FIOR (a brand of iron ore) though in several telephone directories was held neither "primarily" nor "merely" a surname on that account. But the "name or surname H SALT ESQ. for an English fish and chip shop, within a simple border and in what appears to be conventional printed form was recently approved here in a trade mark application. This is a relatively common surname. JUICY seems "clearly descriptive" for fruit. Misspelling it would not help. But GREAT SHAKES for a home milkshake package is only suggestible, hence registrable.

(6) DISTINCTIVENESS:—Any contemplated departures from "use" as set forth under Sec. 3 should be discussed with experienced trade mark agents since the vital quality of "distinctiveness", the sine qua non of a trade mark, can be lost in many ways—and the trade mark absorbed into the common language. However, the Act provides that marks which cannot be registered promptly following the commencement of use as there described, may be registered when they can be proved by acceptable evidence to have become distinctive of the associated wares or services in the public mind. Thus, WEAREVER cookware, FORSYTH shirts, etc., are registered trade marks, (Act 12 (2).) Distinctiveness so acquired is often called "secondary meaning". Distinguishing guise trade marks (see Sec. 1 (iii)) can also only be registered when they have become distinctive, and then only provided the distinguishing characteristics for which an exclusive right is sought do not interfere with any utilitarian features that could limit unreasonably any art or industry.

And if a clearly descriptive mark has been registered in its country of origin, it will be registrable in Canada provided it is "not without distinctive character having regard to all the circumstances . . ." (Act Sec. 14).

(7) WHO MAY REGISTER:—(A) The person who first (i) uses the mark in Canada, (ii) makes it well known in Canada (provided he has used it in a Country of the Union—see Sec. 9), or (iii) filed a "Proposed Application" (Sec. 1 (iv)) provided it is not confusing with any (i) "trade-name" (firm-name) used in Canada or (ii) trade mark as discussed in Sec. 10. (B) The person who has applied for registration of his mark in Canada, provided (i) he has filed application for registration in his Country of Origin, (however the foreign application must mature to registration before the Canadian registration will be allowed to issue), (ii) the mark is not confusing as outlined in Sec. 10, and (iii) the mark has been used in some country. (C) The person owning the registered trade mark described in the last paragraph of Sec. 6 if not confusable with a prior Canadian registration.

(8) PROHIBITED MARKS:—No one may adopt a scandalous, obscene or immoral mark, nor one which is mistakable for the Royal or Vice-Regal arms, crest, etc., or words suggesting the approval or patronage thereof, or the arms, flag, emblem, uniform badge, etc., of Canada or of any province, municipality, university, military, police, or public authority or force thereof, or the well-known Red Cross (or these words) or "United Nations", etc. (Act Sec. 9). Permission for specific use is however provided for. No mark, or one misleadingly similar, which by ordinary and bona fide common usage has become recognized in Canada as designating kind, quality, quantity, destination, value, origin, or production date of wares or services may be adopted as a trade mark for wares of the same general class, or misleadingly used (Act Sec. 10).

(9) THE INTERNATIONAL CONVENTION:—This is the treaty referred to under the section headed "International Priority Protection" in the article on patents. In the Trade Marks Act it is referred to as "the Union". The full name is "The Union (or International) Convention for the Protection of Industrial Property". For trade marks, the priority period referred to from the filing date of the first application is six months, not twelve as for patents. "Country of Origin" where referred to in this article, or the Act, means the Union country in which the applicant (i) has a real business establishment, or (ii) if none, had domicile, citizenship or nationality.

(10) TRADE MARK OFFICE PROCEDURE:—This, undertaken following the filing of an application, is mainly to determine whether the mark is distinctive (see Secs. 5 and 6) which includes being not confusing with a prior application or registration. In many cases slight differences are enough to distinguish. As to surnames, when the mark is a frequent surname and also a common name, like SWAN, such have been registered. Since this example is in addition a rebus, the examiner would also search to make sure that no prior registration or application based on earlier use was on file for the design of a swan. If no objection is made the application is approved.

(11) ADVERTISEMENT AND OPPOSITION:—On approval the applicant is notified that the application may be advertised in the weekly Trade Marks Journal. Upon its exposure therein anyone wishing to oppose on the grounds provided (Act Sec. 37) may do so within one month from the advertising date. Opposition proceedings are beyond the scope of this article. However the Registrar decides in favor of the Applicant or the Opposer having regard to all the facts. From his decision appeal may be made to the Exchequer Court of Canada. Generally speaking he finds in favor of the Applicant in cases of low originality or / and relatively short use by the Opposer, or if in such cases the wares or services differ only slightly, i.e., AIRFOILS cf. AIRCOILS, both in the building products field; BLUE CHIP for alcoholic beverages cf. the same words for business-promoting gift warrants. By contrast, application for registration of TABLOID as applied to radio entertainment and education programs was rejected on the opposition of Burroughs Wellcome & Co. as confusing with its long and widely known nutritive and medicinal preparations of this name.

(12) REGISTRATION AND CONTINUED USE:—Valid registration depends on continued use thereafter, and if an application is refused on a registration which it is believed may have been abandoned, the Registrar may be asked to require by Notice sent to the registered owner, an affidavit as to whether the mark is still in use, and if not, when it was last in use. If an unsatisfactory reply, or none is received, the registration will be expunged, or amended perhaps so as no longer to be an obstacle.

(13) TRANSFER:—Trade marks may be assigned. If the mark is registered, the assignment may be registered upon receipt by the Registrar of evidence satisfactory to him of the same and certain other particulars (Act Sec. 47). Great care must be exercised however that the right of exclusive use goes with any such assignment, since distinctiveness may be lost in various ways, as for example through confusing use contrary to the Act by two persons.

(14) REGISTERED USERS:—Licences made in connection with certification mark registrations (see Sec 1 (ii)) need not be approved or recorded at the Trade Marks Office, although they will be accepted. However, the only safe form of "owner-usable" trade mark licensing, is presently believed to be strictly via all the specific "permitted use" provisions of the Act (Sec. 49), which include that this can be done only after registration of the trade mark. The Act (Sec. 50) generally implies that trade marks licensed otherwise than under the Act are invalid. Such licensing provisions importantly include the submission to, and approval of the proposed licensing conditions between the registered owner and the licensee (called the "registered user") by the Registrar, and for the enforcement thereof. These will on request be preserved in secrecy, and are the only records of the Trade Marks Office relative to applications filed which are so preserved. In this connection, one instance of a galaxy of trade mark situations which may be prevented by full disclosure and consultation with trade mark specialists before a mark is adopted, is when the Canadian subsidiary of a foreign parent, licensed under the basic trade mark(s) of the latter, innocently has local trade mark changes made and starts using the same without realizing that this may place both the Canadian parent trade mark and the modernized version thereof in various degrees of jeopardy. For it is arguable that this course amounts to a constructive license by the parent to illegal use by the subsidiary of the redesigned trade mark.

(15) LEGAL PROCEEDINGS:—Any Court may order that trademarked wares imported into Canada or distributed therein, or which are about to be, and which infringe the registered Canadian trade mark of another, may be put in custody until the issue is tried, with the Complainant putting up the required security for costs and damages.

The Act has two key sections expressive of the rights enjoyed by the owner of a valid registered trade mark; one, Sec. 19 creating "the exclusive right to the use throughout Canada of such trade mark in respect of such wares or services"; the other, Sec. 20, defining the offence of infringement of such rights "by a person not entitled to its use under this Act, who sells, distributes or advertises wares or services in association with a confusing trade mark or trade name". However, anyone can make bona fide use of (a) his personal name as a trade name, or (b) the geographical name of his place of business or any accurate description of the character or quality of his wares or services, except as a trade mark, and provided such is not likely to depreciate the good will value of the trade mark—which depreciation, in any manner, is also forbidden by any one, expressly under Sec. 22.

Further, if a person, in good faith is found to have been using a confusing (unregistered) trade mark or trade name before the filing date of an application for its registration by another (also in good faith) and a Court considers it "not contrary to the public interest to permit continued use of the first confusing mark or trade name within a defined territorial area concurrently with the use of the registered trade mark" it may so order on fair terms including a specified distinction between the marks, provided that the first user applies to register within three months thereafter.

From this section, notwithstanding its brevity, it is believed that some of the advantages of registration will be glimpsed, but with the heavy caution implicit in the provisions that "the registration of a trade mark is invalid if (a) the trade mark was not registrable at the date of registration; (b) the trade mark is not distinctive at the time proceedings bringing the validity of the registration into question are commenced; or (c) the trade mark has been abandoned; and . . . it is invalid if the applicant for registration was not the person entitled to secure the registration" (Act Sec. 18 subject to Sec. 17 which on technical grounds is beyond the scope of this article).

(16) MISCELLANEOUS:—Although several alternative trade marks are often filed as Proposed Trade Marks (see Sec. 1 (iv)) to test registrability (and this is sometimes recommended) nevertheless, it is often prudent to make various kinds of search before any filing, according to the circumstances. For instance; the fact a trade mark is abandoned does not mean it is not being used—and that the owner of it will not oppose when it is advertised (see Sec. 12). Or it may have been "made known" in Canada (see Sec. 4) for which reason a preliminary U.K. and /or U.S. search perhaps including common law trade marks there (of which there are very many) should be made. Searches are also sometimes advisably instituted among Corporation names in the Companies Branch at Ottawa, or in the corresponding branches of the provincial governments. Of course the most usual first search is that made at the Canadian Trade Marks Office.

In the sometimes very thorny problem of choosing a trade mark (or /and a trade name) many considerations enter. Space only permits reference to two: (i) the relative advantages and disadvantages of a trade mark which is included in the trade name, for instance "Shell" Oil Company, cf. "Imperial" Oil Company (ESSO); (ii) the wider inherent legal trade mark rights in coined words like KODAK cf. suggestive marks like FRIGIDAIRE, which latter are however, in view of their meaningful expressiveness, much less expensive to promote.

(17) PRINCIPAL FEES:—

For filing a trade mark application	$35.00
For filing application for extension of wares or services	$25.00
On application for registration as a registered user	$35.00
On requesting advertisement	$25.00
On filing opposition	$25.00
On filing opposition evidence	$25.00

(18) CONCLUSION:—The foregoing article is only intended as an outline of the Act, and is scarcely that as regards the case law standing behind the Act. It should thereore not be regarded as definitive of either the Act or the law, in regard to which only those who specialize in the subject and are registered as agents to practise at least in the Canadian Trade Marks Office, should be consulted. Copies of the Act may be obtained from the Queen's Printer, Ottawa, price 35c and communications relating to trade mark applications should be addressed "The Registrar of Trade Marks, Ottawa".

THE INDUSTRIAL DESIGNS ACT

R.S. 1952 Ch. 150

by Cecil C. Kent, F.P.T.I.C. of

Cecil C. Kent & Associates, Patent Attorneys & Trade Mark Agents, Toronto and Winnipeg

(1) INTRODUCTION:—The "miscellaneous" and indefinite nature of "industrial design" penetrates into all three of the other forms of industrial property statute law—patents, copyrights, and trade marks. This is what has made it so intractable to tidy legislation everywhere.

(2) WHAT INDUSTRIAL DESIGN IS:—There is no definition of this in the Act. By reference to its penal sections it has been concluded, by inference, that it must mean the "ornamenting of any article . . . to which an industrial design may be applied or attached". This wording has been admitted as very unclear and unsatisfactory. Nevertheless, until recently, it was construed literally—virtually for example, as by the application of "show-wood" to mass-produced chesterfields.

In three recent cases in the Exchequer Court of Canada however, a more "organic" interpretation to the above quoted words was given. In the last of these (Cimon Ltd vs. Bench Made Furniture Corporation) a most searching judgment was delivered in which the antecedents of the present Act were traced to their origin—namely to the comprehensive 19th Century definition of "industrial design" in Canada's first Act giving protection in this field, and which still stands up to the needs of modern Industrial Designers.

To be a registrable industrial design, it must not have been in use to the proprietor's knowledge at the time he adopted it, and he must so declare in his application. Also, a design is only an industrial design when more than fifty reproductions are made, or are intended to be. This does not include the units forming a single set. Industrial design subject-matter also includes printed paper hangings, carpets, floor cloths, or oil cloths manufactured or sold in lengths or pieces, textile piece goods, or textile goods manufactured or sold in lengths or pieces, and machine made lace.

(3) THE SPECIFICATION:—Since, unlike patents, industrial design specifications do not include claims, the organization of the supporting disclosure, and its scope, depends very much on the subject-matter sought to be protected. To specify color, or texture of materials for instance would probably introduce a limitation to these characteristics. Moreover, the Registrar is subject to regulations, to attempt the avoidance of which may sometimes use up valuable time running against the twelve months of publication referred to in the next following section.

The examination is to insure that the subject-matter "does not so closely resemble any other design already registered as to be confounded therewith", and is not contrary to public morality and order. The subject-matter must also be sufficiently unitary to constitute an industrial design as applied an article. Simplicity of design is no barrier. However, applications have been rejected on a holding of entire absence of design subject-matter as such (meaning in our experience, the presentation of nothing but pure utility). This of course is not meant to convey that a machine tool, a tire or the like cannot be design-protected. Very many registrations issue on such as these, as well, for contrast, as on dresses, jewelry, etc.

With fair frequency, for reasonably sufficient protection, several registrations may be needed, either for (i) variably styled (or stylable) parts of a single article, or (ii) several stylistic variations of the complete article within its broad "design concept".

(4) REGISTRATION:—In order to be protected, the application for registration of the design must not only be filed, but the design must be actually registered, "within one year from the publication thereof in Canada".

Industrial design applications carry the same six months priority from the filing date in the first country belonging to The International Convention for Protection of Industrial Property as is referred to in Sec. 9 of the article on trade marks—but see the section headed "International Priority Protection" in the article on patents, for fuller treatment.

(5) INFRINGEMENT AND PENALTIES:—No one, without the written licence of the registered proprietor, may, with respect to either the whole or part of the design, apply it, or a fraudulent imitation of it, for purposes of sale, to the ornamenting of any article, or publish, sell, expose for sale, or use, any article to which such design or a fraudulent imitation thereof has been applied. Anyone who does so is liable for damages, costs and a penalty of up to $120. Action for such relief must be brought within twelve months from the cause thereof.

(6) MARKING:—"In order that any design may be protected" under the Act, it must be marked with the name of the proprietor on the article to which his design applies, together with the year of registration, and the letters Rd. (Act, Sec. 14 (1)). If a woven fabric, these marks must appear "on one end thereof", otherwise "at the edge or upon any convenient part thereof". Alternatively however, the marking requirements may apparently be met by an attached label "with the proper marks thereon" (Id. (2)). Marking as registered any article for which no design has been registered, or on which the registration has expired, carries the liability to a penalty of up to $30.00 for each offence.

(7) TERM OF PROTECTION:—The term of registration is five years, renewable for up to a further five years, with a maximum of ten years. However, during this period the design may qualify for "permanent" registered protection as a Distinguishing Guise trade mark described at Sec. 1 (iii) and at the end of Sec. 6, of the writer's article on trade marks, through having acquired "secondary meaning". Of importance also to keep in mind is the fact that, while an industrial design registration is only obtainable on the ornamental features of the product as visual ornamentation, sometimes patentable utility is also embodied in such ornamentation. For example many such common articles as chairs and tables may be patentably new, useful, improved and design-registrably ornamental—hence protectable in both these ways. The Ronson lighter is an example of the "triplicate" protection discussed in this section.

(8) DRAWINGS:—While good photographs are acceptable by the Office for industrial design application purposes, the Act and Rules expressly specify drawings and their dimensions, etc. Only black and white line drawings are clearly reproducable and sufficiently durable for their purposes. In the celebrated case referred to in Sec. 2 the Plaintiffs' registered design was illustrated by photos. However, it was noted by the Court that Counsel for both sides agreed that the photographs were sufficient, and added that "that question is not therefore in issue in this case although it does appear to me to raise a problem of some difficulty".

In view of such words, skilfully executed drawings in exact accordance with the Act and Rules are strongly recommended. Every aspect of the design should be revealed. The drawings should be accurately proportioned and shaded. Line-shading, stippling, and zippertone or the like may be employed. Since industrial designs in a large proportion of cases are the creations of professional industrial designers who are either good artists themselves or employ such persons, most patent agents will gladly instruct them as to what views precisely appear to be required. Otherwise the agent's own patent draftsman should be permitted to do the job for best results.

(9) DESIGN-CLIENT RELATIONS:—Subject to valid agreement, including one which is not in restraint of trade, the industrial designer has copyright in his submissions to the client, whether in two- or three-dimensional form. There is frequently conspicuous misunderstanding on both sides as to their respective rights. Accordingly more professional designers would be well advised to seek advice in the formulation of a flexible policy, and general forms of agreement suited to the classes of commission solicited.

The designer is entitled for instance to protect himself against depreciation of his reputation by permitting the cheapening of designs he has sold and which are known to be his. Therefore, one clause in his contract should provide that he may exercise suitable control in this respect. Behind this of course stands the need to agree on whether he is merely selling the design, or selling his copyright to it—even then the design may not be debased to the designer's disadvantage.

The confidential nature of graphic submissions disclosed should be written into the contract. Practices should be established to prove delivery and acceptance of creative proposals as far as seems practicable and necessary.

(10) CONCLUSION:—This article is only intended as an outline, and should not be taken as definitive of the Act or the law; wherefore a registered patent agent should be consulted. The Act is very unevenly drafted and has been harshly criticized for its shortcomings by the Courts. Nevertheless, as we have shown, in its central provision, i.e., what it is intended to protect, the Act has now been very considerably updated—and less by the stretching or distortion of inadequate language as by a reasonable construction of which in fact it was always capable.

It must be repeated that industrial designs, trade marks, patents, and copyrights frequently intermingle in various ways. An industrial design is a trade mark also when used "for the purpose of distinguishing, or so as to distinguish, wares or services". Just as imaginative word trade marks serve to make the product sound, and be thought of, as more than what it is (HALO shampoo, T-N-T popcorn . . .), so successful industrial designs make the product look like what it is for "only more so". In a word, as David Riesman, the well-known sociologist has said "glamour in packaging and advertising of products has replaced price competition"—a statement which can hardly be challenged.

CANADIAN PATENTS FOR INVENTIONS

by CECIL C. KENT, F.P.T.I.C. of Cecil C. Kent & Associates, Patent Attorneys and Trade Mark Agents, Toronto and Winnipeg.

PATENTABLE SUBJECT MATTER:

A Canadian patent is intended to be granted, in general, to the first inventor of any made thing, including a machine, or a process, method, or composition of ingredients, which is new and useful, or is an improvement in any of these.

The controlling statute is The Patent Act, (R.S.C. 1952, c.203). The term of exclusive use given by it is 17 years. During this period the protected subject matter must be marked "Patented, 1968" (or as the case may be). Penalties are provided for failure to do so (Sec.80).

Grants of Letters Patent for inventions are assignable wholly or partly. But an assignment is null and void if not recorded before a subsequent assignment to another person. Exclusive royalty licences must be recorded.

PATENTS PENDING:

Between the time of making an application for patent, and the issue of the actual patent, the owner is said to have a "patent pending", and may so mark the invention, or else with the equivalent expression "patent applied for". Pending applications are secret. If a patent is refused it will so remain. The sole exceptions: If the number and title of a patent in a named foreign country can be supplied, the Patent Office will advise by a simple yes or no whether there is a corresponding Canadian application pending.

MANUFACTURE BEFORE PATENT ISSUE:

The average time which a patent application remains pending is two-three years. It is not infringement for another to manufacture the invention during this time. Since however the application is secret, such a notice as "patents pending" may be a useful warning. For good cause, such as fear of infringement, a Special Order may be obtained. By this means the prosecution of an application may be speeded up. What has been made by another before patent issue, can be used and sold after issue without infringement. In the Exchequer Ct. case of Libbey-Owens-Ford Glass Co. vs. Ford Motor Co. of Canada decided January, 1969 it was also held that the use of a process "acquired" before issue of a patent upon such process could be continued after issue. In the U.K. monopoly commences with the filing of a complete application. If appealed to the Supreme Ct. the outcome will be of considerable interest since a number of technical questions arise from a consideration of this case. Therefore, whether the applicant should (a) allow his application to take its normal course, (b) seek a Special Order, or/and (c) keep his invention secret until the patent issues, will depend upon the invention, e.g., whether it is a low-cost short life consumer item, or a high-priced piece of capital equipment, etc.

Every country has its own different patent laws. An inventor need not file his application in Canada first. He must however apply here before his invention has been in public use or on sale in Canada, or described in any patent or publication printed anywhere, for more than two years. He must also apply before a patent has issued to him upon it in any country, unless he filed in Canada within 12 months after filing his first foreign application.

INTERNATIONAL PRIORITY PROTECTION:

Canada is a member of the International Convention for the Protection of Industrial Property. Most countries are signatories to this treaty including the U.K., U.S., all Europe except Albania, Japan, U.S.S.R., Mexico, Brazil, Australia and N.Z., etc. While not included, India and Pakistan have sub- New countries are continually joining. Its main provision is that if the first application is made in any member country, the applicant may by filing a corresponding patent application within the following twelve months in all other such additional member-countries as he wishes, obtain the same effective filing date in such additional member countries, as he would have had if he had filed such applications when he filed his first one. However, this privilege does not over-ride the public use, sale, or printed publication provisions of the last above paragraph.

PATENT TO A LATER INVENTOR:

To encourage public disclosure of inventions, or promptest possible application for patent, the Act provides that, notwithstanding what has been stated above, a patentee who is not the first inventor will not have his patent voided because another person can prove that he knew of, or even used, the same invention before the patentee, unless (i) that other person can prove he disclosed or used it in such a way that it became available to the public, or (ii) he had in fact filed a Canadian application within such a period that it should have come into conflict with the patentee's application so that priority could be awarded according to the Act, or (iii) such other person had filed abroad under the International Convention (explained above) before a patent had issued to the patentee, or (iv) the other person applied for patent within twelve months after the patent was issued to the patentee.

Any patent application for an invention which has been covered by a Canadian patent already granted under the Act, shall be refused unless the applicant, within a time set by the Commissioner of Patents, commences action to set aside the prior patent so far as it covers the invention in question.

IMPEACHMENT AND DECLARATORY JUDGMENT:

The Attorney General or any person interested may ask the Exchequer Court to declare void a patent, or any claim therein. And if any person has reasonable cause to believe that any process or article that, in general, he does, or wishes to, make, use, or sell, might be alleged by any patentee to infringe his patent, such person may ask the Exchequer Court for a declaration that it does not or would not do so. However the person moving for the declaration asked must put up security for costs.

NATURE OF PATENT APPLICATION:

The Act and Rules require that the invention be fully and correctly disclosed in a specification, and if possible drawings as prescribed. In addition, important case-law influences this highly specialized task. Briefly, the structure, operation, and principle of a machine must be stated, including the best mode in which the inventor has contemplated the application of said principle. The description must be sufficiently clear to enable any person skilled in the area of the invention to make or use it. In a process, the various steps and their sequence must be set forth so as to distinguish the invention from others. The specification must particularly indicate, and at its end distinctly claim in explicit terms, the part, or things, improvement(s) or combination of these, of which the invention is believed to consist. If however any material statement is untrue, or the specification and drawings contain more or less than is necessary for their purpose, and this is wilfully misleading, the patent is void.

NATURE OF PATENT OFFICE EXAM:

After determination as to its class, the Examiner (one of a staff of some 170 mainly engineers and chemists) studies the claims of each application against the "prior art" (mainly prior patents, but also magazines and textbook, etc. publications) to see if such claims "read on" such prior art. To the extent they do so, obviously they fail to define anything new. He then reports his findings to the inventor's patent agent who in turn studies the cited prior art and either argues its irrelevance, or attempts to re-draft the claims so as to re-define what still appears to be patentable subject-matter.

SCOPE OF PATENTS:

It is important to understand that the Examiner does not compare the claims of prior related patents still in force to see if they read on the application he is evaluating. His duty is only to decide whether there is patentable "novelty" in the application over what prior patents, texts, etc., have described. It must therefore be understood that a prior patent still in force, especially its claim or claims, is sometimes broad enough to include the improvements described in a later perfectly valid patent. Then, if the invention of that later patent is manufactured, it may infringe the prior patent, and such infringement can be stopped.

Accordingly it is more correct to regard a patent not necessarily as an exclusive right to make, use, or sell the invention it protects, but to stop others from doing so. For example, when Bell invented the telephone, his patent "dominated" many improvement patents. And rightly, since but for such a basic patent, the telephone might not have been available to improve upon. Some licensed or assigned to Bell; for of course he likewise could not use the improvement-patents of others.

PRELIMINARY, INFRINGEMENT & VALIDITY SEARCHES:

Searches can be conducted at the Patent Office, and logically, when a new idea is conceived in germinal form, the first sort of search should be made to see if a patent of any scope appears obtainable. Since the existence of a dominating patent as described in the last above section is not too frequently encountered, a preliminary search is often enough, and the experienced patent agent can advise according to circumstances. The manufacturer, distributor, or importer however, often comes across lines which he knows he cannot patent, not being the inventor, but would like to take up. For such as these, the patent agent is often called upon to make an infringement, or "right to make" search. Unlike the preliminary search which can span patents and publications of several countries and covers the field regardless of time, the infringement search is made "in depth" only among those patents still in force in the country in which it is desired to make, use, or sell. Then, if an obstructing patent is found, again according to circumstances, a validity search may be embarked upon to see if it really ought to have been issued.

DIVISIONAL APPLICATIONS:

A patent is supposed to issue for one invention only (though several are often shown and described). And if the patent does issue for more than one invention, it is not invalid on that account.

To minimize initial costs, what in fact amounts to several distinct inventions are often included in an application. Usually the examiner specifies the lines of division in his first report, and requires that only one be elected for further examination. However, the non-elected remainder need not be "divided out" for filing as separate applications until the patent on the elected species is about to issue.

PROVISIONAL PROTECTION OF INVENTIONS:

Provided an inventor only intends to patent in Canada, a "caveat" may be filed upon it at the Patent Office describing the invention as fully as possible. According to the Act if, during the year following its deposit, another files a patent application with which the caveat interferes, the Commissioner gives the caveator three months to file a patent application whereupon conflict proceedings described below will be instituted.

It should be particularly understood that the filing of a caveat gives no official international priority protection—and particularly no U.S. priority. Hence, if as in many cases the invention has greater commercial potential abroad, anyone who relies on the protection of his caveat and discloses his invention may easily lose his U.S. or other foreign patent rights. In contrast, by an expertly prepared British Provisional Patent Application, priority for one year may be obtained in Canada, the U.S., and all countries of the International Convention referred to above. Further information as to how the commercial prospects for an invention may be inexpensively tested by this means, or time gained to complete and prove an invention's merit, is outside the scope of this brief article, but may be obtained from any registered patent attorney or agent.

CONFLICT BETWEEN RIVAL APPLICATIONS:

Canada is one of the few countries that, in general, grant patents to the first inventor, and not the first applicant. However, in a conflict between co-pending applicants, the first to file appears usually to win. When a conflicting situation is established, both applicants file affidavits stating the date when they (i) conceived the subject-matter in dispute, (ii) made the first drawing, (iii) made first disclosure, and how, and (iv) took successive steps, and the nature thereof, to develop and protect the invention up to the filing date.

The Commissioner considers the affidavits, and decides to which is to be awarded priority. He then sends a copy of the affidavits of each to the other. Appeal from his decision lies by way of the Exchequer Court of Canada.

CHEMICAL PATENTS:

If the invention relates to substances prepared or produced by chemical processes, and intended for food or medicine, the substance itself may not be claimed as such, but only when prepared by the particular method or process essentially as particularly described and claimed. However, merely mixing ingredients is not chemistry, so in that case the product as such can be claimed.

REISSUE AND DISCLAIMER:

If a patent is defective or inoperative due to (i) insufficient description, or (ii) claiming more or less than was new, and the error was innocent and due to inadvertence, accident, or mistake, then, if the patent is surrendered within four years after issue, an amended patent will be issued if on re-examination this is justified, for the balance of the term. If reissue is refused, the original patent remains intact, and the record of the reissue proceedings remains secret. A disclaimer may be filed any time, and is for the purpose of removing any claim to invention which subsequently has appeared unjustified, provided it was innocently made in the first place by mistake, accident, or inadvertence.

COMPULSORY LICENSING:

The Commissioner of Patents may at any time require a patentee to transmit a return stating whether the invention is being worked commercially in Canada, where and by whom, and if not, why not. Failure to respond is deemed an admission that it is not being so worked.

The Attorney General, or any "person interested" may at any time after three years after the grant complain to the Commissioner that the patent rights have been abused, and ask for relief—in effect an order for a licence to manufacture, paying the patentee a reasonable royalty.

The Commissioner in considering the complaint, takes into account such factors as (i) the capability of the complainant to supply the public with the invention, (ii) whether, by reason of the nature of the invention, enough time has elapsed to permit Canadian manufacture, (and if he finds there has not, he will allow the complaint to stand over for an appointed period), (iii) whether the patentee has imported the invention instead of making it in Canada, (iv) whether he has attached unfair conditions to working of the invention in Canada, (v) etc.

The compulsory licensing provisions are expressly for encouraging and securing the greatest possible manufacture of patented inventions in Canada. The Commissioner has wide powers under these lengthy provisions, including revocation of the patent if necessary.

ATOMIC ENERGY; GOVERNMENT PATENT USE AND OWNERSHIP:

Any application believed to relate to atomic energy is first communicated by the Commissioner of Patents to the Atomic Energy Control Board. The Government of Canada may use any patented invention, paying reasonable compensation therefor, and subject to appeal by the patentee to the Exchequer Court for higher compensation.

Any invention "in instruments or munitions of war" made by a Crown or Crown Corporation servant etc., acting within the scope of his duty as such, must, if so requested, assign all benefits in it to the Government.

An inventor other than such as just mentioned, may also assign as stated, and be entitled to compensation. Persons making assignments or having knowledge thereof, are deemed to have information entrusted in confidence. Other provisions deal with secrecy. Sec. 15 provides that the Governor in Council, if satisfied that an invention relating to any instrument or munition of war, described in any specified application for patent not assigned to the Minister of National Defence, is vital to the defence of Canada, and that the publication of a patent therefor should be prevented in order to preserve the safety of the State, may order that such invention and application and all the documents relating thereto shall be treated for all purposes of this section as if the invention had been assigned or agreed to be assigned to the Minister of National Defence.

FALSE MARKING:

A fine of up to $200.00 or imprisonment or both is provided for marking as patented, with intent to deceive, that which is patented by another, or which is not patented (Sec. 81). Anyone who "in relation to the purposes of the Act, knowing it to be false, makes any false representation", is liable to a fine up to $500.00, or to imprisonment or both (Sec. 82). False use of expressions such as "patents pending" are suggested as within this provision, although no case has yet fallen to be decided.

INFRINGEMENT OF PATENT:

The patent owner may bring this action in the Exchequer Court of Canada, or the Provincial Courts, and obtain an injunction, delivery up for, or destruction of infringing subject-matter, costs, and damages or an accounting. If he is unsuccessful, only the former can declare a patent void, although the latter can do so as against the particular defendant. Patent rights do not prevent use of the invention in a ship, aircraft or vehicle of any country entering Canada temporarily, and employed exclusively for its needs.

A patent can be held valid and infringed, or not infringed, void as just stated, or invalid. Also, if containing two or more claims, one or more can be held valid and the rest invalid. Effect is then given to the patent as if it contained only the valid claim(s). A patent is presumed valid unless declared otherwise. The onus of proving this is on the defendant, and has repeatedly been held a heavy onus to discharge. Patents are upheld as far as possible.

APPLICATIONS OF JOINT INVENTORS, ASSIGNEES:

If more than one person inventively contributes to the actual invention, the application should be filed by such persons jointly. If the whereabouts of a co-inventor, or assignor is unknown, or if he refuses to apply or proceed, provisions exist to enable the other(s), or the assignee(s) to proceed without him. Joint inventors who are not under contract of service or the like to assign, should define their mutual rights and obligations, since, in the absence of agreement, each may work the invention independently, and legal uncertainties can also arise in the event of disagreement if assigning.

PRINCIPAL OFFICIAL FEES

Canadian patents have been printed since the issue of No. 445,931 in January, 1948. They can be obtained for one dollar. Photocopies can be obtained of older patents as indicated below.

On filing an application	$ 50.00
For each independent claim over two	$ 10.00
For each claim over ten	$ 2.00
On Grant of Patent	$ 80.00
On Grant, for printing of the first 25 pp	$ 20.00
On lodging a Caveat	$ 25.00
For filing a re-issue application	$100.00
For filing a supplementary disclosure	$ 50.00

CONCLUSION:

All correspondence concerning patents should be addressed to The Commissioner of Patents, Ottawa. Applicants for patents are advised to retain a registered attorney or agent due to the specialized nature of the subject, and the fact that the validity and scope of a patent can depend materially upon this. Most are also registered to practise before the U.S. Patent Office. The patent law and practice of that country has not been included in this article, and is considerably more complex. The close economic ties between the two nations often make U.S. patents very important to Canadian resident inventors, which is another reason why only the advice of those authorized to practice before the Patent Office, should be sought.

The foregoing article is only an outline of the subject. It should not therefore be regarded as a definitive statement of either the Act or law. A list of registered patent agents for any area will be supplied by the Commissioner of Patents on request by Harold G. Fox, Q.C.

THE CANADIAN LAW OF COPYRIGHT

What Is Copyright? Copyright, as its name implies, is merely the right to restrain copying. By the terms of the Canadian Copyright Act, which came into force on January 1st, 1924, copyright subsists in every original literary, dramatic, musical, and artistic work. The work must be original and its author must, at the date of its making, be a British subject, a citizen or subject of a foreign country which has adhered to the Berne Convention, or be resident within British Dominions; and if in the case of a published work the work was first published within British dominions or in a country which has adhered to the Berne Convention. A work is deemed to be first published in such a country if published there and in some other country simultaneously. The last word is interpreted as allowing fourteen days interval between the publication in the two countries.

Copyright under the Copyright Act and the Berne Convention must, however, be considered in the light of the terms of the Universal Copyright Convention which is discussed post at p. 598.

Publication means the issue of copies to the public. It does not include the performance in public of a dramatic or musical work, the delivery in public of a lecture, the exhibition in public of an artistic work, or the construction of an architectural work of art. Nor does the issue of photographs and engravings of works of sculpture and architectural works of art constitute publication of such works.

Copyright is defined by the Act as the sole right to produce or reproduce the work or any substantial part thereof in any material form whatsoever, to perform, or in the case of a lecture to deliver, the work or any substantial part thereof in public; if the work is unpublished, to publish the work or any substantial part thereof. Copyright as conferred by the statute includes the sole right to produce, reproduce, perform, or publish translations of the work, the sole right to convert from a dramatic work to a non-dramatic work, to convert from a non-dramatic work or an artistic work to a dramatic work, by way of performance in public or otherwise, to make records, perforated rolls, cinematograph films or other contrivances by means of which the work may be mechanically performed or delivered; to reproduce, adapt and publicly present the work by cinematograph, to communicate it by radio communication, and to authorize any of these acts.

Originality. The originality required by the statute relates to the expression of thought. The form in which the work is clothed should be original although the idea or concept upon which the work is based need have no originality whatsoever. Originality in copyright law means that the work must be in a form created by its author and must not be copied from any other work. An illustration of this principle may be furnished in simple terms by reference to copyright in paintings. An artist may paint a particular scene, let us say, in the Laurentian mountains. A second artist may set up his easel on exactly the same spot as the first artist and may paint exactly the same scene, as he sees it. Whatever similarity the two works may have is irrelevant. The second work is an original work and entitled to copyright. If, however, the second artist does not go to the scene itself, but paints his canvas from a view of the first artist's canvas, the second artist not only infringes the first artist's copyright, but is not entitled to copyright in his own work. The same principle, of course, applies to photographs.

In order to understand this principle it will be useful to refer to copyright in compilations and anthologies. An author may decide to write, as an example, a history of the Roman Empire. He cannot know that history other than by reading the sources, original and secondary. From these he compiles a work based upon the works of others, but to which he has lent an original character by his own mental labours, and is therefore entitled to copyright in that work. A second author may go to the same original and secondary sources and compile a like work. He is entitled to copyright in it and does not infringe the copyright of the first compiler provided he uses the first compiler's work fairly and only for checking the accuracy of his own without copying any substantial part of it.

Literary Works. Literary works are those that are expressed in print or writing such as books, maps, plans, tables and compilations. Copyright in a work includes the title of the work if that title is original and distinctive, but the mere taking of a title apart from any substantial part of a work does not constitute infringement. It is only when the title has become so far identified with a work as to mean that work and that work alone in the minds of the public, that such a taking can be restrained on the ground that the second work is passed off on the public as and for the first work.

Dramatic Works. Dramatic works include any piece for recitation, choreographic work, or entertainment in dumb show, the scenic arrangement or acting form of which is fixed in writing or otherwise, and any cinematograph production where the arrangement or acting form or the combination of incidents represented give the work an original character. Copyright subsists not only in the actual words of the work but in the dramatic incidents created. In order to be protected as a dramatic work there must be some dramatic action. On this basis a dance step or piece of dramatic action may be protected by a written description of the acts of the performer. In that case there is a double copyright, one in the writing itself as a literary work and the other in the reproduction of the dance or drama, which is thus fixed in writing.

Musical Works. Musical works are defined as any combination of melody and harmony, or either of them, printed, reduced to writing or otherwise graphically produced or reproduced. There is, therefore, no copyright in an impromptu until its notation has been fixed in writing or print by the composer. There then exists the right to restrain either its copying in printed form or its public performance.

Artistic Works. Artistic works include works of painting, drawing, sculpture and artistic craftsmanship, and architectural works of art and engravings and photographs. Engravings include etchings, lithographs, woodcuts, prints and other similar works not being photographs. An architectural work means any building or structure having an artistic character or design in respect of such character or design, or any model for such building or structure, but the protection is confined to the artistic character and design and does not extend to processes or methods of construction.

Industrial Designs. Certain works fall within the definition of artistic works but will not be subject to copyright owing to certain conditions. These are such works as are designs capable of being registered under the Industrial Design and Union Label Act, and used or intended to be used as models or patterns to be multiplied by any industrial process. Designs which do not meet that definition are not industrial designs but artistic works and are subject to artistic copyright. A design is deemed to be used as a model or pattern to be multiplied by an industrial process when it is reproduced or intended to be reproduced in more than fifty single copies not together constituting a set or is to be applied to (1) printed paper hangings, (2) carpets, floor cloths or oil cloths manufactured or sold in lengths or pieces, (3) textile piece goods or textile goods manufactured or sold in lengths or pieces or (4) lace, not made by hand.

Literary or Artistic Merit. In no case need the subject of copyright possess any degree of literary or artistic merit. It would be highly improper if copyright were to depend on the opinion of any court as to the presence or absence of such an elusive quality, depending solely on individual taste, value, or discretion. The writer of doggerel verse or the mystery novel is entitled to the same copyright as the winner of the Nobel prize in literature, and the author of the comic strip cartoon receives no less protection than do those whose works are hung in the galleries of the nation. In this regard the applicable maxim is De gustibus non disputandum.

Immoral Works. There is one minor qualification to the above remarks. The courts will not protect immoral, indecent, obscene, or blasphemous works. What falls within the scope of these terms is impossible of definition and must depend upon the susceptibilities and sensibilities of any court adjudicating upon the matter. Thus, thirty years ago Elinor Glynn's Three Weeks was held to be an obscene work disentitled to protection. Within the present decade Judge Wolsey, in the United States, promulgated his now famous decision holding that Joyce's Ulysses was not an immoral work and more recently, the High Court in England refused to find that Lawrence's Lady Chatterley's Lover was obscene. Tempora mutantur nos et nutamur in illis! It may safely be said in principle that a work that is not purely pornographic but is honest work endeavouring to create an atmosphere, to depict life or to delineate the author's or artist's concept of things as they are or ought to be, would not be held to be immoral and would be entitled to copyright.

Ownership of Copyright. The author of the work is, in general, the first owner of the copyright. The author is the person who actually writes, draws, paints, carves, models, fabricates, or composes the work, unless he is a mere amanuensis or workman. A person who suggests the idea of a work is not its author or even joint author. A ghost writer, therefore, is the author of the biography which he writes and the possibly famous person of whom he writes and who supplies the facts and recollections upon which the biography is based is not entitled to any share in the copyright—unless, of course, there is an agreement to the contrary. It should always be remembered that copyright is a property right and, therefore, contracts can be made respecting its ownership and disposal.

A work of joint authorship is one produced by the collaboration of two or more authors in which the contribution of one author is not distinct from the contribution of the other author or authors. Joint authors, in general, own copyright in equal shares.

In the case of photographs the person or corporation owning the original negative from which the photograph is made is deemed to be the author and therefore the owner of the copyright. The same principle applies in the case of the owner of the original plate from which any records, perforated rolls and other contrivances for mechanically reproducing sounds were derived.

Where a plate or other original of an engraving, photograph or portrait is ordered and made for valuable consideration and pursuant to the order, then, in the absence of agreement to the contrary, the person giving the order and not the author of the work is the first owner of copyright. This is an important principle. In the case of a portrait painter, the subject who gives the order and pays for the portrait receives not only the finished portrait for which he pays, but the copyright in his portrait as well. In the case of photographs the same principle applies. But where the photographer takes photographs on speculation and then endeavours to sell them to the subject, it is the photographer who owns the copyright.

Where the author of the work is in the employment of some other person under a contract of service or apprenticeship and the work was made in the course of his employment by that person, the person by whom the author was employed is, in the absence of any agreement to the contrary, the first owner of the copyright. Where, therefore, a writer on a newspaper or magazine holds a position on the staff of that publication for which he is paid a salary, and writes, let us say, feature articles, the copyright in those articles belongs to the owner of the publication. If, however, an independent or free lance writer is retained to write a series of articles for which the owner of the publication contracts to pay him a certain sum of money, the copyright in those articles belongs to the writer and not to the owner of the publication, because the writer is under a contract for service and not a contract of service.

Where an article or other contribution to a newspaper, magazine or similar periodical, is written by a staff writer acting in the course of his employment and there is no agreement to the contrary, although the copyright in the article resides in the owner of the publication, the writer nevertheless has reserved to him a right to restrain its publication otherwise than as part of a newspaper, magazine or similar periodical. Thus a staff writer may contribute to his newspaper or magazine a series of twenty or thirty articles. It is then decided to publish those articles in book form. The owner of the publication cannot publish without the author's consent, and the author, not being the owner of the copyright, cannot publish without the consent of the owner of the publication. The only way publication can occur is by mutual agreement, and in such case it is presumed that the author will make his bargain to his best advantage.

There is a distinct cleavage between the intangible right known to the law as copyright, and the ownership of the physical embodiment in which that right resides. This is of particular importance in the case of artistic works. Many painters and sculptors are unaware of the fact that when they sell one of their works they do not necessarily part with the right to reproduce it or, in other words, to issue copies of it to the public. It must also be said that many purchasers of artistic works, particularly art galleries, national and otherwise, take an arbitrary view of the rights they acquire when they purchase an artistic work. Copyright is something entirely apart from the piece of canvas and pigment composing a painting and from the mass of bronze, marble or other material forming a work of sculpture. The sale of the physical object and the transfer of property therein do not of themselves transfer copyright. Copyright is a separate and distinctly existing right and can only be transferred by contract, express or implied. For this reason authors, artists, composers, sculptors and other creators of original works would be well advised to ensure that every sale of their works is made in accordance with a written memorandum. If such a procedure were generally adopted the present habit indulged in by art galleries of selling photographs and other reproductions of artistic works in their possession without compensation to the artist would promptly cease.

But, since the practice of selling photographs is to the publicity advantage of both gallery and artist, artists would be well advised to enter into an agreement with galleries to continue to issue photographs on a royalty basis.

Term of Copyright. The general term of copyright in works published and performed in public during the author's lifetime is the life of the author and fifty years after his death. In the case of a literary, dramatic or musical work or an engraving in which copyright subsists at the time of the death of the author, but which has not been published nor performed, nor in the case of a lecture, been delivered in public before that date, copyright subsists till publication or performance or delivery in public, whichever may first happen, and for a term of fifty years thereafter. It will thus be seen that copyright in unpublished works may extend almost indefinitely.

In case of works of joint authorship copyright subsists during the life of the author who dies last and fifty years after his death. The term of copyright in photographs is fifty years from the making of the original negative. In the case of records, perforated rolls, and other mechanical contrivances for the reproduction of sound, the term is fifty years from the making of the original matrix, plate, or negative.

Copyright in Government publications is fifty years from the date of first publication. This term is provided by statute, but one would be well advised to remember that the Crown may well claim a prerogative right of copyright in perpetuity.

In all cases of published works the term of copyright is subject to a statutory right for any person to reproduce the work on statutory terms at any time after the expiration of twenty-five years or, in the case of works in which copyright subsisted on June 4, 1921, thirty years, from the death of the author. The statutory terms require notice of intention to publish and the payment of royalties calculated at 10 per cent of the published price of the work.

Assignment and Licence. Creators of original works may assign their copyright either wholly or partially and either generally or subject to territorial limitations and either for the whole term of the copyright or for any part thereof, and may grant any interest in the right by way of licence. No such assignment or grant is, however, valid unless it is in writing signed by the owner of the copyright or by his duly authorized agent. The owner of copyright may, therefore, split the right into as many component parts as he desires. He may assign or license the right to publish, to produce or to reproduce his work on one or a million occasions. He may allow reproduction in one or a dozen countries or in one or a thousand cities. He may assign or license to different persons the right to reproduce a work of art by photography and by colour process. He may license its reproduction to one person for a calendar and to another for a Christmas card. In fact there is hardly any limit that can be placed upon the dealings which a copyright owner may have in his copyright if he can find someone who desires a particular part of the right and is willing to pay for it.

Where part of the copyright is assigned, the assignee becomes the owner of that part of the right. If, therefore, the composer of a musical work assigns the right of public performance, the assignee can restrain everybody else from performing the work in public. He cannot, however, restrain the author or the person to whom the author may assign that particular part of the copyright from issuing printed copies of the musical score to the public.

An assignee or licensee is wise to register his assignment or licence in the Copyright Office at Ottawa.

Droit Moral. The moral right of an author is recognized by the Canadian Copyright Act which provides that, independently of the copyright and even after the assignment, he shall have the right to claim authorship of the work and to restrain distortion, mutilation or other modification in the work which would be prejudicial to his honour or reputation. The statute does not say who is to decide what amount or what quality of distortion, mutilation or modification would be prejudicial to an author's honour or reputation. This is a subject which has received wide treatment in the European and South American countries. There is no corresponding section in the British Copyright Act and, despite the quarter of a century during which the section has found its place in the Canadian statute, no case has been heard by the courts in which this section was invoked. It is interesting to speculate whether the reason for such lack of interest in the section lies in the honesty and integrity of Canadian publishers, performers and owners of other reproducing media or in the apathy and indifference of Canadian authors, artists, and composers.

Formalities. Copyright under the Canadian Copyright Act is automatic and the author of a work need comply with no formality whatsoever in order that he shall possess copyright in his work. The statute contains provisions for registration of copyright but these are permissive only and no registration need take place. There is one minor point on which registration might possibly benefit the author but it is involved in such legal technicalities that it need not be discussed further. It may safely be said that an author is perfectly protected if he entirely neglects to register his copyright.

Berne Convention. Once a work is made, copyright subsists not only in Canada but throughout the British Commonwealth and all countries which have adhered to the Berne Convention.

Universal Copyright Convention. On August 10, 1962, Canada adhered to the Universal Copyright Convention. The United States is a member of the Universal Copyright Convention. Copyright under this Convention subsists (except for certain classes of works) for a minimum term of the life of the author and twenty-five years after his death.

The general principle of this Convention is that published works of nationals of any contracting state, wherever published, and published works of nationals of any country if first published in one of the contracting states, enjoy the same protection as that other state accords to works of its nationals first published in its own territory. Unpublished works of nationals of each contracting state enjoy in each other contracting state the same protection as that other state accords to unpublished works of its own nationals.

Any contracting state that requires as a condition of copyright compliance with formalities such as deposit, registration, etc., or publication in that contracting state shall regard those requirements as satisfied with respect to all works protected in accordance with the Convention and first published outside its territory and the author of which is not one of its nationals if from the time of the first publication all the copies of the work published with the authority of the author or other copyright proprietor bear the symbol © accompanied by the name of the copyright proprietor and the year of first publication placed in such manner and location as to give reasonable notice of claim of copyright.

Infringement. Infringement consists in doing without the consent of the owner of the copyright anything the sole right to do which is by the Copyright Act conferred on the owner of the copyright. It will thus be seen that it is infringement, without the consent of the owner of the copyright, to issue copies of a work to the public, to perform it in public, to reproduce it in any manner, to make a translation of it, to convert a novel into a dramatic work, to convert a dramatic work into a novel, and so on. But it must be emphasized that copyright is not an absolute monopoly, but is only the right to restrain copying, and if some other person produces a similar work independently of the owner of the copyright, there will be no infringement.

Importation of infringing works constitutes infringement as well as their being made in the country. There are effective provisions in the Copyright Act and in the Customs Tariff Act for preventing importation of infringing copies.

The making of only one copy of a work will constitute infringement and it need not be an exact copy. A colourable imitation is sufficient. There must, however, be a substantial part of the work taken or a substantial part of the work performed in public. In one case the reproduction of the march Colonel Bogey consisting of so much as was played in twenty seconds was held to be an infringement. In another case dealing with the musical work Walking my Baby back Home sufficient was played to allow the court to recognize the tune, although the evidence was so conflicting that the plaintiff claimed that thirty-two bars had been played and the defendant claimed only five bars had been played.

There are specific provisions relative to infringement in cases of making records and other mechanical contrivances for the reproduction of sounds. They are somewhat complicated but, in general, they provide that the making of such contrivances shall not constitute infringement if similar contrivances have previously been made by, or with the consent of, the owner of the copyright, and the person who makes them gives notice of his intention to make them and pays the stipulated royalty of two cents per perforated roll or playing surface.

Lawful Use of Copyright. By statute there are certain lawful uses of copyright and no person is permitted to complain if the use of his work is made under the following circumstances:

1. Any fair dealing with any work for the purpose of private study, research, criticism, review or newspaper summary. The use must be fair. Thus in one Canadian case an entire article was printed in a newspaper as the basis upon which a criticism was printed following it. The court held that this was not fair dealing.
2. The author of an artistic work who is not the owner of copyright therein may use any mould, cast, sketch, plan, model or study made by him for the purpose of the work, provided that he does not thereby repeat or imitate the main design of the work.
3. Paintings, drawings, engravings, or photographs may be made of a work of sculpture or artistic craftsmanship if permanently situated in a public place or building. The same thing may be done in connection with any architectural work of art so long as such drawings, etc., are not in the nature of architectural drawings or plans.
4. Short passages from copyright published literary works which are not themselves published for the use of schools may be published in a collection mainly composed of non-copyright matter bona fide intended for the use of schools and so described in the title and in any advertisements issued by the publisher. But no more than two of such passages from works by the same author may be published by the same publisher within five years and in each case the source from which such passages are taken must be acknowledged.

5. A newspaper may publish a report of a lecture delivered in public, unless the report is prohibited by a conspicuous notice affixed before and maintained during the lecture.

6. The reading or recitation in public by one person of any reasonable extract from any published work. Note the limitation to "one person." This precludes the public performance by more than one actor of even a small scene in a dramatic work.

7. Any musical work may be performed without motive of gain by the directors at any agricultural, agricultural-industrial exhibition or fair which received a grant from or is held under Dominion, provincial or municipal authority.

8. Any church, college or school and any religious, charitable or fraternal organization may perform any musical work without payment if done in furtherance of a religious, educational, or charitable object.

9. A report of an address of a political nature delivered at a public meeting may be published in a newspaper.

Remedies for Infringement. In case of infringement the owner of copyright has two remedies. He may sue the infringer in the civil courts for damages incurred by him, as well as the profits made by the infringer, and may ask for the delivery to him of all infringing copies. Such an action is to be brought within three years after the infringement takes place. In addition, the owner of the copyright may prosecute the infringer criminally for his acts. This should give the copyright owner little, if any, personal satisfaction and no gain would accrue to him other than the satisfaction of personal animus. The first remedy is the proper one and is that which ought to be followed.

Works made before 1924. Copyright as we now know it came into effect with the new Canadian Copyright Act on January 1, 1924. But copyright subsisted in many works in Canada at that date, and in such cases they received copyright under the new Act by virtue of a special transition section. It would be difficult to express in any moderate space the principles upon which copyright subsisted in Canada prior to 1924. There was in existence a Canadian Copyright Act prior to that date which required registration and any work registered under that Act would naturally be the subject of copyright. But copyright might also have subsisted in certain works prior to 1924 which were not registered under that Act. We may state the position shortly as follows:

1. Copyright subsisted at the effective date (January 1, 1924) in all works then unpublished whatever their nature.

2. Literary works published in the British Dominions were the subject of copyright whether registered or unregistered either in Canada or at Stationers' Hall in London.

3. Dramatic works were protected as literary works in their printed form, but so far as their performing right was concerned copyright subsisted during the life of the author and seven years after his death, or forty-two years from the date of first performance of the work. If the work fell within that definition on the effective date copyright subsisted in that work provided it had not been first performed in a foreign country to which the Imperial International Copyright Act did not extend.

4. Musical works enjoyed copyright in printed form as literary works, whether registered or unregistered and so far as concerned their performing right were treated the same as dramatic works.

5. Artistic works were protected prior to 1924 only if they were registered under the then existing Canadian Copyright Act.

6. Mechanical contrivances for reproducing sounds, if made before January 1, 1924, are by special provision treated as if the present Copyright Act had been in force at the time they were made.

The above is not intended to be an exhaustive statement of the law of copyright prior to the commencement of the present Copyright Act. It is, however, of the utmost importance when considering works in existence before January 1, 1924 to understand what was their status at that effective date because the new Act contains a transition section which conferred copyright under the new Act upon all works in which copyright subsisted at the effective date. The first thing to decide, therefore, is whether a work was or was not the subject of copyright on January 1, 1924. If it was, no matter what the nature or term of the copyright to which it was then entitled, it is now entitled, generally speaking, to copyright as established by the new Copyright Act.

Future Legislation. The Report on Copyright of the Royal Commission on Patents, Copyright, Trade Marks and Industrial Designs was published on August 1st, 1957. Many radical changes in the law of copyright are proposed, but no bill has as yet been presented to Parliament. The above summary therefore sets out the law applicable at present until such time as a new Statute is enacted.

It is a matter of no little difficulty to endeavour to explain the principles of the law of Copyright within the short compass of this article. Many subjects have obviously been left untouched and there will naturally remain many pitfalls for the unwary. The intention of this article is to give to the author, artist, sculptor and composer, a very broad and general idea of the rights he possesses in his original creations. Those rights ought to be protected and their owners will find that an appreciation and understanding of those rights and an insistence upon their recognition will earn them respect in this commercial world, while at the same time according to them some measure of reward for their labours. Those labours have produced and are producing great works for the benefit and enjoyment of mankind and as a famous jurist said nearly two centuries ago, "It is wise in any state to encourage letters and the painful researches of learned men. The easiest and most equal way of doing it, is, by securing to them the property of their own works. Nobody contributes, who is not willing; and though a good book may be run down and a bad one cried up, for a time; yet sooner or later, the reward will be in proportion to the merit of the work. A writer's fame will not be the less, that he has bread, without being under the necessity of prostituting his pen to flattery or party, to get it. He who engages in a laborious work, which may employ his whole life, will do it with more spirit, if, besides his own glory, he thinks it may be a provision for his family."

  - (ii) owned, either alone or jointly or in common with any other person except the deceased or a person described in clause (b) of subparagraph (i), by a corporation controlled by the deceased, the whole or any part of the amount payable under which policy was payable to the corporation and no part of the amount payable under which policy was payable as described in clause (c) of subparagraph (i), in which case there shall be included only that part of the amount so payable to the corporation that exceeds minus

(b) any losses sustained by the corporation in any of the fiscal periods of the corporation referred to in clause (a) from any such business carried on by it.

Amendments to Section 3

(2) Section 3 of the said Act is further amended by adding thereto, immediately after subsection (1) thereof, the following subsections:

(1a) Where a donee during his lifetime received from his spouse a gift in respect of which a deduction was allowed by virtue of paragraph (b) of subsection (1) of section 7, or a gift that was exempt from tax under Part IV of the Income Tax Act by virtue of paragraph (e) of subsection (1) of section 112 thereof, made by his spouse by the creation of a trust or other settlement described therein, the property subject to the trust or other settlement at the time of the death of the donee (including any amount payable to the trustee of any such trust under any policy of insurance effected on the life of the donee) shall be deemed to be property passing on the death of the donee.

(1b) For the purpose of subsection (1a), where any gift referred to therein was made by the donor thereof by the creation of a trust that is a settlement described in paragraph (b) of subsection (1) of section 7 but to which clause (A) of subparagraph (i) thereof does not apply, the value of the property subject to the trust at the time of the death of the donee shall be deemed to be the lesser of its value at that time or the value at the time of the death of the donor, determined in accordance with the regulations, of the payments referred to in clause (B) of that subparagraph."

Property not Included in Computing Aggregate Net Value

4. (1) (NOTE: This subsection provides that there shall not be included in aggregate net value the value of any property or part thereof disposed of pursuant to a bona fide sale by the deceased for full consideration in money or money's worth.)

(b) reasonable funeral expenses and surrogate, probate and other like court fees in respect of the death of the deceased (but not including solicitors' charges or the expenses of administering property or executing any trust created by the deceased).

6. Notwithstanding section 5, no deduction may be made under that section

(a) for any debt incurred or encumbrance created, to the extent that such debt or encumbrance cannot, by due process of law, be realized out of property passing on the death of the deceased.

"(a) the value of any property passing on the death of the deceased to which his spouse is the successor that can within, six months after the death of the deceased or such longer period as may be reasonable in the circumstances, be established to be vested indefeasibly in his spouse for the benefit of such spouse, except any such property comprising a gift made by the creation of a settlement or the transfer of property to a trustee in trust;

(b) the value of any gift made by the deceased whether during his lifetime or by his will that can, within six months after the death of the deceased or such longer period as may be reasonable in the circumstances, be established to be absolute and indefeasible and that was made by him by the creation of a settlement under which

(i) the spouse of the deceased is entitled to receive

(a) all of the income of the settlement that arises after the death of the deceased and before the death of such spouse, or

(b) periodic payments in ascertained amounts or limited to ascertained maximum amounts, to be made at intervals not greater than twelve months, out of the income of the settlement that arises after the death of the deceased and before the death of such spouse, or, if that income is completely exhausted by those payments, out of the income and capital of the settlement, and

(ii) no person except such spouse may receive or otherwise obtain, after the death of the deceased and before the death of such spouse, any of the capital of the settlement or any use thereof, or any of the income of the settlement to which such spouse is entitled or any use thereof, or by the transfer of property to a trust that at the time of the transfer was a settlement to which subparagraphs (i) and (ii) apply, the creation of which constituted a gift inter vivos by him to his spouse that was exempt from tax under Part IV of the Income Tax Act by virtue of paragraph (e) of subsection (1) of section 112 thereof;

(c) in respect of each child of the deceased who survives him the lesser of

ONTARIO

The Succession Duty Act, being Chapter 386 of
The Revised Statutes of Ontario, 1960

Aggregate Value

"Aggregate Value" which determines the normal rates of duty means the value at the death of the deceased of the property wherever situate passing on his death together with the value of all lifetime dispositions wherever made, where such dispositions are made on or after the first day of July, 1892, less allowable debts, reasonable funeral expenses, Surrogate Court fees, solicitors fees for obtaining probate or letters of administraton to the extent of $100.00 and less the exemptions authorized by section 5 and specified below.

Estates Exempt from Succession Duty

1. An estate, the aggregate value of which does not exceed $10,000.00.

2. An estate, the aggregate value of which does not exceed $20,000.00, where the only persons who participate are the following, or some of them, and any one of the persons mentioned in (a), (b), (c) or (d) does not receive more than $10,000.00.

(a) Any brother or sister of the deceased;

(b) Any descendant of a brother or sister of the deceased;

(c) Any brother or sister of the father or mother of the deceased;

(d) Any descendant of a brother or sister of the father and mother of the deceased.

(e) The persons mentioned, or referred to, in 3, below, and any lineal ancestor of the deceased.

Note: Where the aggregate value does not exceed $20,000.00, but a collateral receives over $10,000.00, the present additional rate only will apply but the present base rate will not apply.

3. An estate, the aggregate value of which does not exceed $50,000.00, where the only persons who participate are the following, or some of them: the grandfather, grandmother, father, mother, husband, wife, child, son-in-law or daughter-in-law of the deceased.

Note: See provisions of S.82 of the Child Welfare Act, 1965, (Ont.) 1965, C.14. "Child" is defined in Section 1 (d) of the Succession Duty Act.

Dependants' Allowance and Individual Dependant Allowance

The Succession Duty Act was amended in 1959 by the Succession Duty Amendment Act to bring into the Act exemptions in favour of the widow, dependent children and infirm husband of the deceased parallel to those in the new Dominion Estate Tax Act.

Section 2, subsection 1, of the Succession Duty Amendment Act, 1959 enacts a new subsection (1a) of Section 6 of the Succession Duty Act, now Section 7 (2) R.S.O. 1960 Chapter 386 Clause (a) of Section 7 (2) provides that no duty shall be levied on a dependant, when the total of the benefits to all dependants does not exceed the total of their individual exemptions. This total of individual exemptions has been defined as "Dependants' Allowance".

"Dependants' Allowance" means,

(i) where the deceased is survived by a wife and no dependent children, $75,000,

(ii) where the deceased is survived by a wife and a dependent child or children, an amount equal to the sum of $75,000 and $15,000 for each dependent child,

(iii) where the deceased is survived by an infirm husband and one dependent child, $90,000,

(iv) where the deceased is survived by an infirm husband and more than one dependent child, an amount equal to the sum of $75,000 and $15,000 for each dependent child, or

(v) where the deceased is not survived by a spouse but is survived by a dependent child or children, an amount equal to the product expressed in dollars of $25,000 and the number of dependent children.

The following are examples of the operation of this Clause:

1. A man dies leaving an estate of $105,000 survived by a widow and two dependent children. Here the dependants' allowance is $105,000 and no duty is payable, if the estate passes wholly to these dependants or any one of them.

1a. A man dies leaving an estate of $150,000 with a widow and two dependent children; he leaves $105,000 among these three dependants. Here no duty is payable on the benefits to the dependants but the rest of the estate passing to other persons is dutiable as at present.

1b. A man leaves an estate of $150,000 again with a widow and two dependent children to whom he leaves the whole estate. Here duty is payable on the whole estate as at the present time, unless Clause b of Section 7(2) applies.

2. A woman dies leaving an infirm husband and four dependent children. Her estate is $135,000. Here no duty is payable if the estate goes wholly to these dependants or to any one of them.

3. A man or woman dies leaving five dependent children, and no surviving spouse, leaving an estate of $125,000. Here no duty is payable if the estate is divided among these children or goes to any one of them.

Clause b of Section 7 (2) provides that where the benefit to a "dependant" does not exceed the amount of his "individual dependant allowance" no duty shall be payable by him.

The amounts of the "individual dependants' allowance" are:

(i) in the case of the wife of the deceased, $75,000,
(ii) in the case of the infirm husband of the deceased where the deceased is survived by a dependent child, $75,000,
(iii) in the case of a dependent child of the deceased where the deceased is survived by a wife or infirm husband, $15,000 or
(iv) in the case of a dependent child of the deceased where the deceased is not survived by a spouse, $25,000.

INDIVIDUAL DEPENDANT REDUCTION AND INCREASED INDIVIDUAL DEPENDANT REDUCTION

The Succession Duty Act was amended by the Succession Duty Amendment Act, 1962-63 (which came into force on April 26th, 1963) to provide for a reduction in the duty otherwise payable by dependants. This was accomplished by the addition of a new subsection (2a) to section 7 of the Act.

"(2a) The duty levied on property passing on the death of the deceased to or for the benefit of a dependant and on him shall be reduced by an amount equal to the amount obtained by dividing the product of,

(a) the sum of the value of the property passing on the death of the deceased to him or for his benefit on which duty is levied and of the value of all transmissions to him and of the value of all dispositions in respect of which duty is levied on him; and by the sum of the value of all the property passing on the death of the deceased to him or for his benefit, and of the value of all dispositions to him that do not come within clause g of subsection 1 of section 5."

(b) the amount of his individual dependant reduction or of his increased individual dependant reduction, if the greater,

A definition of individual dependant reduction and increased individual dependant reduction was added to the Act by the inclusion of clauses (da) and (cb) to subsection 8 of section 7 of the Act.

"(da) 'individual dependant reduction' means, in the case of a dependant, the amount obtained by applying to the amount of his individual dependant allowance the rates applicable under subsection 1 to amounts equal to the amount of his individual dependant allowance and by adding to the amount so obtained 15 per cent thereof, provided that, where the dependant's individual dependant allowance is less than $50,000, the rate to be applied to his individual dependant allowance shall be 2.5 per cent."

The "individual dependant reduction" is as follows:

Widow—$4.743.75.
Infirm Husband where there is at least one dependent child—$4,743.75.
Dependent Child where there is also a widow or infirm husband—$431.25, and Dependent Orphaned Child—$718.75.

"Increased individual dependant reduction" is defined in clause (cb) as follows:

"(cb) 'increased individual dependant reduction', in the case of a dependant where the deceased is not survived by a wife, means the sum of,

(i) the amount of his individual dependant reduction, and
(ii) an amount equal to the amount obtained by dividing the product of,
  A. the amount of the dependant's individual dependant allowance, and
  B. the sum of the amounts of the individual dependant reduction of dependants in whose cases the sum of the value of the property passing on the death of the deceased to him or for his benefit, and of the value of all dispositions to him that do not come within clause g of subsection 1 of section 5, does not exceed the amount of his individual dependant allowance, by the sum of the amounts of the individual dependant allowance of all dependants, exclusive of dependants mentioned in subclause B."

The following are some examples of the application of the new provisions for the reduction in duty otherwise payable by dependants:

1. AGGREGATE VALUE: $100,000.00
DISTRIBUTION: All to Widow. No other dependants.
DUTY: $100,000 @ 7.5% = $7,500.00
Surtax @ 15% = 1,125.00
$8,625.00

INDIVIDUAL DEPENDANT REDUCTION:
$ 75,000 @ 5.5% = $4,125,00
Surtax @ 15% = 618.75
$4,743.74

Widow's duty reduced under provisions of subsection (2a) of section 7 by Individual Dependent Reduction.

$$\frac{$100{,}000.00 \times $4{,}743.75}{$100{,}000.00} = $4{,}743.75$$

DUTY then: $8,625.00—$4,743.75 = $3,881.25

2. AGGREGATE VALUE: $100,000.00
DISTRIBUTION: All to widow. One dependent child who receives nil.
DUTY as in 1 above = $8,625.00
REDUCTION: Increased Individual Dependant Reduction of wife is: $4,743.75 + $431.25 = $5,175.00

Thus REDUCTION is: $$\frac{$100{,}000 \times $5{,}175}{$100{,}000} = $5{,}175.00$$

WIDOW'S DUTY: $8,625.00—$5,175.00 = $3,450.00

3. AGGREGATE VALUE: $150,000.00
DISTRIBUTION: Widow—$100,000.00
One dependent child—$35,000
One dependent child—$15,000

DUTY RE WIFE: $100,000 @ 8.0% = $8,000.00
Surtax @15% = 1,200.00
$9,200.00

REDUCTION: Widow's Increased Individua Dependant Reduction is $4,743.75 + $431.25 (Individual Dependant Reduction of child who is not dutiable) = $5,175.00

Widow's duty thus reduced by amount of

$$\frac{$100{,}000.00 \times $5{,}175.00}{$100{,}000.00} = $5{,}175.00$$

WIDOW'S DUTY: $9,200.00—$5,175.00 = $4,025.00

DUTY RE DEPENDANT CHILD:
$35,000.00 @5.5% = $1,925.00
Surtax @15% = 278.75
$2,203.75

REDUCTION: Duty reduced by Individual Dependant Reduction being an amount equal to $15,000.00 @2.5% = $375.00
Surtax @15% = 56.25
$431.25

DUTY THUS: $2,203.75—$431.25 = $1,772.50

It will be seen from the above examples that if there are assets passing to or for the benefit of a dependant or dispositions to him that do not come within the provisions of clause g of subsection 1 of section 5 upon or in respect of which no duty is leviable the individual and increased individual dependant reductions are reduced proportionately.

EXAMPLES: Reduction in case of Foreign Estates and Ontario Estates with Foreign Realty.

1. FOREIGN ESTATE:
AGGREGATE VALUE: $75,000.00
DISTRIBUTION: All to widow, no other dependants
ONTARIO ASSETS: $20,000.00
DUTY: $20,000.00 @5.5% = $1,100.00
Surtax @15% = 165.00
$1,265.00

INDIVIDUAL DEPENDANT REDUCTION:
$75,000.00 @5.5% = $4,125.00
Surtax @15% = 618.75
$4,743.75

WIDOW'S DUTY REDUCED under provisions of subsection (2a) of section 7
$20,000.00 × $4,743.75 = $1,265.00
$75,000.00
DUTY THEN: $1,265.00—$1,265.00 = NIL

2. ONTARIO ESTATE:
FOREIGN REALTY:
AGGREGATE VALUE: $125,000.00
DISTRIBUTION: Widow—$110,000.00
ONE DEPENDANT CHILD: $15,000.00
FOREIGN REALTY: $20,000.00 (to widow)
DUTY: Widow $90,000.00 @7.85% = $7,065.00
Surtax @15% = 1,059.75
$8,124.75

Child $15,000.00 @ NIL
(Amount to child does not exceed his Individual Dependant Allowance).

INCREASED INDIVIDUAL DEPENDANT REDUCTION OF WIFE: (Individual Dependant Reduction of wife and Dependant Reduction of dependent child.)
$4,743.75 + $431.25 = $5,175.00

WIDOW'S DUTY REDUCED under provisions of subsection (2a) of section 7 by Increased Individua Dependant Reduction.
$90,000.00 × $5,175.00 = $4,234.09
$110,000.00
DUTY THEN: $8,124.75—$4,234.09 = $3,890.66

An additional "notch" provision is contained in the Act to cover the exemptions in favour of the widow, dependent children, and infirm husband of the deceased.

The "notch" clause is to be applied only after the reduction provided for in subsection (2a) of section 7 has been made and provides that:

1. The amount of duty payable by a dependant at no time exceeds one-half of the amount by which the benefit to the dependant exceeds the individual dependant allowance.

2. The amount of duty payable by the dependants at no time exceeds one-half the amount obtained by multiplying the total value of all property passing to or received by dependants minus the total dependants' allowance by the duty payable by the dependant and dividing by the total duty payable by all dependants.

The 'notch' provision for collateral class beneficiaries where the aggregate value exceeds $10,000 but does not exceed $20,000 reduces the duty to one-half of the amount obtained by multiplying the amount passing to the beneficiary by the excess amount over $10,000 and dividing by the aggregate value. Where the aggregate value of the estate exceeds $20,000 there is an initial rate of duty and if a collateral beneficiary receives more than $10,000 an additional rate of duty as well. The 'notch' provision where the aggregate value exceeds $20,000 applies only to the initial rate of duty. There is no 'notch' provision for the additional duty. The 'notch' provision is applied to the basic duty only and the additional duty is then added to the reduced basic duty.

Note,—The phrases— "Amount passing to any one person", and "whole amount passing to one person", as used in above tables, include the value of the lifetime dispositions in favor of such person as well as the value of the property passing to him on the death of the deceased.

The allowance made by Ontario in such circumstances will be the amount of duty levied on such property by the foreign jurisdiction; provided however that if the duty levied on such property by the foreign jurisdiction exceeds the duty levied by Ontario with respect to the transmission of such property, the allowance will be the amount of the Ontario Duty.

The jurisdictions concerned are as follows:

DESCENT AND DISTRIBUTION OF PROPERTY—ONTARIO

A CONDENSED SUMMARY OF THE LAW OF INTESTATES ESTATES

All real and personal property which is vested in any person without a right in any other person to take by survivorship shall, on his death, whether testate or intestate, (notwithstanding any testamentary disposition) devolve to his personal representative as trustee for the persons by law beneficially entitled thereto and subject to the payment of his debts, and so far as such property is not disposed of by deed, will, contract or other effectual disposition, the same shall be administered, as if it were personal property not so disposed of.

A husband who, if The Devolution of Estates Act had not been passed, would be entitled to an interest as tenant by the curtesy in the real property of his wife, may, by deed or instrument in writing executed, and attested by at least one witness and delivered to the personal representative, if any, or if there is none, deposited in the office of the Registrar of the Supreme Court at Osgoode Hall, within six months after his wife's death, elect to take such interest in the real and personal property of his wife as he would have taken if the said Act had not been passed, in which case the husband's interest therein shall be ascertained in all respects as if the said Act had not been passed, and he shall be entitled to no further interest thereunder.

The real and personal property of every man dying intestate and leaving a widow whether or not he leaves issue shall, where the net value of such real and personal property does not exceed $20,000, belong to his widow absolutely and exclusively. The term "net value" means the value of the real and personal property after payment of the charges thereon and the debts, funeral expenses and expenses of administration, including succession duty.

Where the estate of the husband consists in whole or in part of real property, such benefits shall not accrue to her and she shall only be entitled to her dower unless she elects to take her distributive share, as set out herein, in lieu of dower. The term "dower" means the right of the widow, for her life to one-third of the rents and profits from the real estate owned by her husband at his death.

1. By the provisions of the Devolution of Estates Amendment Act 1966, real property not disposed of, conveyed to, divided or distributed among the persons beneficially entitled under Section 21 of the Devolution of Estates Act (R.S.O. 1960 c. 106) by the personal representative within three years after the death of the deceased is, subject to the Land Titles Act or Section 58 (6) and (7) of the Registry Act, vested in the persons beneficially entitled or their assigns without any conveyance by the personal representative, unless the personal representative has registered a Caution in the registry or land titles office, and, if such Caution is registered the real property mentioned in the Caution does not vest for three years from the time of registration of the last Caution.

2. Under the provisions of the Devolution of Estates Amendment Act 1961-62, if the mother of an illegitimate child dies intestate with no surviving legitimate children or if an illegitimate child dies intestate, the child or the mother shares in the other's estate.

Subject to the above, the estate of a person dying intestate is distributed as set out below, according to the Devolution of Estates Act, R.S.O. 1960. It will be noted that where the widow takes a share, the net value of the estate is presumed to be in excess of $20,000. Where there is no widow to take a share, the net value of the estate is immaterial.

DISTRIBUTION

If the Intestate die leaving,—

1. A widow only, the widow gets $20,000 plus interest thereon at 4% from date of death until payment and two-thirds of the residue. Remaining one-third of the residue equally to the next of kin of the deceased husband and those who legally represent them. For example, if the next of kin were a father, mother, brother and sister, or any of these and if there were children of a deceased brother or sister, the said one-third would be divided equally among all of these, save that the children aforesaid would take per stirpes and not per capita,—that is they would take equally the share which their father or mother would have taken had he or she survived the intestate. If there are no kindred to inherit, the said remaining one-third of residue would go to the Crown.

2. Widow and one child or legal representatives of child, $20,000 and interest as above and half residue to widow. The other half to child or equally among legal representatives.

3. Widow and children and legal representatives of deceased children—$20,000 and interest as above and one-third of residue to widow. The other two-thirds equally among the children and the legal representatives of deceased children, the latter taking per stirpes.

4. Widow and father or mother or brother or sister, $20,000 and interest as above and two-thirds of the residue to widow. The remaining one-third of residue to the father or mother or brother or sister.

If the intestate die leaving,—

1. A husband only,—Husband gets $20,000 plus interest thereon at 4% from date of death until payment and one-half of the residue. Remaining half among next of kin of deceased wife and those who legally represent them and in same proportions as mentioned in No. 1 above. If there are no kindred to inherit, the said remaining one-half would go to the Crown.

2. A husband and child or legal representatives of child,—Husband gets $20,000 plus interest thereon at 4% from date of death until payment and one-third of residue. The remaining two-thirds to child or equally among legal representatives.

CANADIAN LAW AND BUSINESS

Norman P. Goldman, Notaire and Title Attorney, Montreal, Quebec

I—FEDERALISTIC NATURE

One of the distinctive features of the Canadian legal system is its federalistic nature. Consequently, according to the British North America Act, two separate lawmaking authorities exist—the federal government and the provincial governments. Furthermore, each authority has exclusive jurisdiction within certain domains. This exclusivity is outlined in sections 91 and 92 of the B.N.A. Act. Therefore, such matters as the following fall within the federal sphere: the amendment of certain sections of the B.N.A. Act dealing solely with the federal government; regulation of trade and commerce; unemployment insurance; the raising of money by any mode or system of taxation; penitentiaries; navigation and shipping; fisheries; marriage and divorce; currency; banks and banking; bills of exchange; promissory notes; copy rights; naturalization and criminal law. On the other hand, the following fall within the provincial domain: direct taxation within the province in order to the raising of a revenue for provincial purposes; municipal institutions in the province; the borrowing of money on the sole credit of the province; local licences in order to the raising of a revenue for provincial, local or municipal purposes; property and civil rights in the province; the incorporation of companies with provincial objects; the solemnization of marriage in the province; local works (other than those given to the federal government); administration of justice in the province, including the constitution, maintenance and organization of provincial courts; and "generally all matters of a merely local or private nature in the Province".

Two powers—immigration and agriculture—are given to both the federal and provincial governments. However, should a conflict of legislation arise, the federal law will prevail. Finally, education is principally under the jurisdiction of the provinces, but under certain circumstances the federal government is given the power of intervention.

II. VARIOUS FORMS OF BUSINESS ORGANIZATION IN CANADA

As a general principle four forms of business organization are recognized in Canada.

(A) SOLE OWNERSHIPS
(B) PARTNERSHIPS
(C) LIMITED COMPANIES
(D) BRANCHES OF FOREIGN COMPANIES

A—Sole Ownerships

A sole ownership type of business implies that the enterprise is owned solely by one individual. Consequently, the proprietor is entitled to all of the firm's profits, but he is also legally liable for all of the firm's debts.

The legal requirements for setting up a sole ownership type of business do not vary much from one province to another. Basically, most provinces require the owner to register within a certain limit of time after commencing operations, a document attesting to the fact that a sole ownership type of business venture will be in operation under a certain name and style. An attorney or a Notaire (in the Province of Quebec) will be able to draft such a document and take care of the required registration.

Finally, the intended location of the business premises should be checked with the permits and inspections department of the municipality or town where the operation of the business venture is contemplated. This is quite important because certain zoning laws have established areas in which it is not permissible to carry on particular types of businesses.

B—Partnerships

The partnership type of business is composed of at least two persons who pool their resources and abilities in the conduct of a particular business venture.

It is the essence of the partnership contract that it should be for the common profit of the partners, each of whom must contribute to it skill, capital or industry. Furthermore, if partners are to participate in the profits of the partnership, they also are obligated to contribute to its losses.

The most widely known type of partnership is the commercial kind when the objectives are for the carrying out of a trade, manufacture or other business of a commercial nature. Two main divisions of commercial partnerships are:

(i) General Partnerships, which are for the purposes of carrying on business under a collective name or firm consisting ordinarily of the names of the partners, or one or more of them;

(ii) Limited Partnerships, which are composed of one or more general partners who conduct the business, and one or more persons who contribute an amount in actual cash, called special or limited partners.

With the exception of the Province of Quebec, each associate of a general partnership is (unless otherwise agreed) only responsible jointly with the other associates for the debts and obligations of the partnership while he is a partner. In the Province of Quebec, each partner of a general commercial partnership is jointly and severally liable for debts and obligations of the firm incurred while he is a partner.

In a limited partnership, the special or limited partners are not liable for the debts of the firm beyond the amounts they contribute to the capital. A limited partner, however, must take no part in the management of the business else he becomes a general partner.

A partnership arrangement should be drawn up in a formal document between the partners and should include the following elements:

i—Objective;
ii—Firm name or style;
iii—Place of business of the partnership;
iv—Term of the partnership;
v—Amount of investment contributed by each partner;
vi—Participation in the profits and losses;
vii—Duties of the Partners;
viii—Dissolution of the Partnership;
ix—Provisions in the event of death;
x—Special conditions;
xi—Salary;
xii—When inventory to be made;
xiii—Liquidation procedures.

This agreement should be drafted by either a lawyer or a Notaire (in the Province of Quebec).

Partnerships, as is the case of sole ownerships, are required to be registered. Furthermore, they are liable for all federal, provincial, and municipal taxes in a similar manner to incorporated companies except for income taxes which are exigible on that part of the profits apportioned to each partner and are included in the income of each partner and thus taxed at personal income tax rates.

C—Limited Companies

The most complicated form of business organization is the company or corporation.

A company is an artificial person whose existence is either perpetual or temporary. It is formed upon application to either the Federal or Provincial Government. The applicants, at least three in number, must all be of the age of twenty one with power under law to contract. The application itself sets forth such information as the proposed name of the company, the objects for which incorporation is sought, the authorized share capital of the company and the type and classes of shares to be issued.

A company acts through its board of directors elected by the shareholders in a general meeting, and the directors must manage the entire operations of the company. The directors have exclusive authority as to the appointment, duties and removal of the agents, officers and employees of the company. However, these directors are personally liable to the shareholders and the creditors of the company if proof of negligence and breach of trust on their part can be made.

If a company be formed under the federal Companies Act, it has a status and power entitling it to carry on business throughout Canada. However, such a company is subject to provincial laws of a general application, such as in respect of holding lands, liability for taxes, and for the regulation of contracts generally. It is to be noted, however, that the status and powers of a federally incorporated company cannot be restricted nor curtailed by discriminatory legislation on the part of provincial authorities. Nevertheless, such powers of a federal company are exercisable only within the general framework of provincial law.

If a company be formed under a provincial Companies Act, as a general principle, it would be entitled to carry on business only in one province and it is usually necessary for the company to become licensed or registered in any other province in which it desires to carry on business. Furthermore, an extra-provincial company would be required to be licensed or registered before it is permitted to take legal action in the provincial courts. However, in the Province of New Brunswick and under a reciprocal arrangement between the Province of Ontario and Quebec, registration is only required in one of these provinces, not both.

One of the major advantages of the corporate form of organization is that the liability of the shareholders is limited to the value of the shares they own. Therefore, if a shareholder has bought $50.00 worth of stock in a company and the company goes bankrupt, he will lose the amount he paid for the stock, but the company's creditors have no claim on his personal possessions.

Finally, one of the major disadvantages of the corporate form of organization is that it is more closely regulated than other forms of business organization. The company must keep certain books and records (including incorporation documents and lists of directors and shareholders) which shall be open to the inspection of the shareholders and in some cases to creditors. Furthermore, it requires a considerable expenditure of time and money to organize a corporation. The advice of accountants, lawyers and Notaries (in the Province of Quebec) is essential.

D—Branches of Foreign Companies

Canadian federal or provincial law does not prevent foreign corporations from setting up branch operations in Canada. Regulations which govern the operation of business and industry are applied without consideration as to nationality, and in cases where certain laws restrict or curb trade, both foreign and domestic companies are treated in the same manner.

A foreign company operating in Canada is not required to be organized under Canadian law or to maintain places of business in Canada, nor are they required by law to have Canadian citizens connected with their operations. However, a foreign company must register or take out a license in most provinces in which it wishes to carry on business and to record a power of attorney, empowering a resident of that province to carry out contracts and accept services of process in all suits and proceedings by or against the firm within the province. Furthermore, all companies operating in Canada are obligated to abide by laws and regulations which affect the particular type of business in which they are engaged. This includes, among others, import documentation, accounting records, business licenses, etc. The branch is likewise liable to its employees, creditors, and third parties for all acts and debts contracted by its managers, agents, or representatives on behalf of the branch.

III—THE QUEBEC CIVIL LAW SYSTEM

Unlike the other 9 provinces in Canada, the Province of Quebec is unique in that the prevailing legal system is derived from the French Civil Law. Consequently, the law in the Province of Quebec is stated comprehensively in general principles to be found in the Civil Code and the Code of Civil Procedure. This is in contrast to the Common Law system prevailing in the remaining 9 provinces, which trace their legal system to the English Common Law. However, it should be noted that the Province of Quebec is not completely devoid of English Common Law influence, for such matters as rules of evidence in commercial matters, the remedy of injunction, or sections of law of insurance are chiefly drawn from English sources.

One of the distinctively French legal characteristics retained by the Province of Quebec is the profession of "Notaire". The gentleman following this profession cannot practice as an advocate or as a solicitor, and the latter cannot practice as a Notaire. Both types of practitioners take the same basic course in law studies, during which the election is made to go into one mutually exclusive branch of practice or the other.

The "Notaire" is in fact a "Title Attorney" and he supervises and examines transactions, but in a non-contentious capacity. He makes a deed "authentic", that is, in general, unquestionable as to its execution, including the certainty of the date and of the signatures; he numbers and keeps the original of record in his office, delivering as many official copies thereof as may be required, which have the same legal force and authenticity as the original itself. This power is particularly serviceable in connection with Last Wills, Deeds of Sale, Mortgages and Powers of Attorney.

The appointment of a "Notaire" is for life and his jurisdiction extends over the whole Province of Quebec. At his death, his original deeds are transmitted to another Notary or to the Prothonotary of the Superior Court, and the latter with whom they may be deposited have power to issue authentic copies of such original deeds.

Another feature of the Quebec Civil Law system is the provisions regulating the matrimonial regime of married couples. The pecuniary and property relationships between husband and wife, in most countries, are regulated by a special body of rules, usually set forth by law or by special contract envisaged by the law. These sets of rules are termed "matrimonial regimes". In the Province of Quebec, in the absence of a marriage contract between the consorts, the parties are presumed to be in community as to property, unless the husband at the time of the marriage was domiciled in a jurisdiction which presumes the parties to be separate as to property, even if there be no marriage contract.

The laws of succession in the Province of Quebec are likewise quite unique, for under Quebec Civil Law if an individual dies without leaving a last will and testament, ⅔ of his estate devolves to his children and ⅓ to his wife. If he should die leaving brothers and sisters and a wife, ½ devolves to his collateral relations and ½ to his wife.

The age of majority in the Province of Quebec is 21 and persons of either sex remain in minority until they attain the full age of 21. However, a man can contract marriage with parental consent if he be at least 14 years of age, and a woman if she be at least 12 years of age.

Civil law marriages are permitted in Quebec and they are performed by the prothonotary or his deputy, who before solemnizing a marriage publish a notice of the intended marriage 20 days before the date fixed for the marriage in the court house of the district in which each of the parties to be married is domiciled.

Another unique legal institution of Quebec Civil Law is the system of registering immoveable rights as well as certain moveable rights.

Registration gives effect to real rights with regard to third parties. Hence, if an immoveable property such as a house is sold by the same vendor to two distinct individuals, the first to register the title can claim priority of title. Furthermore, certain rights must be registered within a certain time limit. For example, a will must be registered within six months after the death of the testator. Therefore, suppose you believe that a particular individual died without leaving a last will and testament and you purchase an immoveable from a presumptive heir within this period of six months after the death. Later a will is discovered and is registered within this period of six months after the testator's death. The legatee named in this will has the right to claim rightful ownership of the immoveable, and hence you may find yourself evicted. Another example where registration of a right is quite important is in the case of a lease for a period of one year or more. If this lease is not registered, and the immoveable property is sold by the lessor during the course of the term of the lease, the law of Quebec explicitly states that "the lease of an immoveable property for a period exceeding one year cannot be invoked against a subsequent purchaser unless it has been registered".

In conclusion, it is quite important to understand that due to the distinct legal system prevailing in the Province of Quebec that the rules and regulations which may apply to particular types of transactions within a Common Law environment do not necessarily have any force within the Civil Law system.

THE QUEEN'S CIVIL LIST

Until George III. came to the throne in 1760, the income of the sovereign was derived chiefly from Crown lands and certain landed property. In the feudal ages these lands constituted a princely patrimony. In later times this Crown property was greatly reduced by lavish grants to royal favorites, so much so that at the accession of Queen Anne, Parliament endeavored to save the remnant by an Act (1 Anne, c. 8) which prohibited alienation of Crown lands, and enacted stringent provisions in regard to the length of the term for which they might be leased and the rents reserved.

Queen Anne, George I. and George II. derived the larger part of their income from their life-interest in the Crown property, but when George III. came to the throne he surrendered his life-interest in the Crown lands. It was turned over to the nation in return for a fixed Civil List of £800,000, subsequently increased to £900,000. George IV., William IV., Queen Victoria and Edward VII., on their accessions, surrendered their life interest in the Crown lands in return for a Civil List. The same course has been taken by each subsequent monarch on coming to the throne.

Certain hereditary revenues have also been surrendered to the Exchequer.

In 1910 the King's Civil List was fixed at the yearly sum of £470,000.

By the Civil List Act of 1937, the civil list for King George VI was fixed at £410,000 subject to certain abatements while the revenues of the Duchy of Cornwall were vested in His Majesty.

The Civil List Act, 1952, fixed the Civil list for Queen Elizabeth II at £475,000, allocated as follows:

H. M. Privy Purse	£ 60,000
Salaries of H. M. Household	185,000
Expenses of H. M. Household	121,800
Royal Bounty, alms and special services	13,200
Supplementary Provision	95,000
	£475,000

This sum is subject to a reduction equal to a proportion of the net revenues of the Duchy of Cornwall, so long as the Duke of Cornwall is a minor.

In addition to the Civil List as above, provision is made for other members of the Royal Family on a per annum basis as follows:—

Queen Elizabeth, the Queen Mother, £70,000
The Duke of Edinburgh, £40,000.
The Princess Margaret, £15,000.
The Duke of Gloucester, £35,000.

The revenue of the estates of the Duchy of Lancaster (which have been attached to the Crown since 1399), is paid over to the Keeper of Her Majesty's Privy Purse.

THE UNITED KINGDOM GOVERNMENT

The House of Commons, as now constituted (1965) has 630 elected members, with distribution of seats as follows: England 511, Wales and Monmouth, 36; Scotland, 71; Northern Ireland, 12.

The maximum duration of a Parliament is five years. Members receive a salary payment of £3,250 per annum, and travelling facilities between London, home and constituency on Parliamentary duties.

The House of Lords (July 1969) was composed as follows; Peers of royal blood 4; Archbishops 2; Dukes 25; Marquesses 30; Earls and Countesses 163; Viscounts 109; Bishops 24; Barons and Baronesses 704, total 1061 of whom 7 are minors, making the actual number in the House of Lords, 1054.

Peers receive no salary. They are re-imbursed the cost of such railway fees between their places of residence and London as they incur in attending Parliament; they are also re-imbursed other expenses, within a maximum of £4. 14s. 6d. for each day's Parliamentary attendance.

No title attaches to office in Cabinet or Administration. The title Right Honourable is given to all Privy Councillors. These are appointed for life, and every member of the Cabinet who is not already of the Privy Council is made a Privy Councillor.

SCOTTISH OFFICE

Whitehall, S.W.1.

The first Secretary for Scotland was appointed in 1885 in recognition of the fact that Scotland required a separate system of administration from that of England and Wales. In 1926, the holder of the office of Secretary for Scotland was elevated to the rank of a principal Secretary of State.

The functions of the Secretary of State are discharged by four main administrative Departments of equal status, each under a Secretary responsible to the Secretary of State for the discharge of the duties of the Department. The day-to-day administration of the Departments is conducted in Edinburgh, but each Department has representatives in London for liaison and Parliamentary duties. This London Office is generally known as the Scottish Office, a term also used to describe the whole system of Scottish administration.

NIGERIA

Population 55,600,000 (est. 1964)

Nigeria became an independent member of the Commonwealth on October 1, 1960, and became a Republic October 1st, 1963.

A Federation comprising 3 regions in 1954 (the 4th, Mid-West, was created in 1963) each with its own Governor and Legislature, Lagos (federal territory).

Following the suppression, power was handed by the Federal Cabinet to the Commander of the Armed Forces, Major-General Aguiyi-Ironsi, who, following his appointment, dissolved Parliament and appointed Military Governors to control the Regional Governments.

On 29th July, a further revolt in the form of an Army Mutiny brought Maj.-Gen. Yakuba Gowon to power as the new Head of State and Commander of the Nigerian Armed Forces. On assumption of office, Maj.-Gen. Gowon appointed the following as Governors: Lagos, Col. Mobolaji Johnson; West, Brig. Joseph Adebayo; Kwara, Lt. Col. David Bamigboye; North-West, Chief Supt. U. The arms are those of England, Scotland, Ireland and France, with a "difference" to mark them as Canadian, namely on the lower third of the shield, a sprig of maple on a silver shield. The crest is a lion holding in its paw a red maple leaf, a symbol of sacrifice. The supporters are, with some slight distinctions, the lion and unicorn of the Royal Arms; the lion upholds the Union Jack, and the unicorn the ancient banner of France.

The motto — A MARI USQUE AD MARE— "From sea to sea" — is an extract from the Latin version of verse 8 of the 72nd Psalm— "He shall have dominion also from sea to sea, and from the river unto the ends of the earth."

PETITIONS TO THE HOUSE OF COMMONS

A petition to the House of Commons must be presented by a Member, and such Member shall be answerable that the petition does not contain "impertinent or improper matter". One person may petition the House of Commons. Petitions may be either written or printed. When there are three or more petitioners, the signatures of at least three shall be subscribed on the sheet containing the prayer of the petition.

Long usage both here and in the United Kingdom has sanctioned the rule that every petition should commence with the superscription "To the Honourable the House of Commons of Canada in Parliament assembled". Then should follow the formula "The Petition of the undersigned —— humbly showeth". The subject matter of the petition then follows in the third person throughout and each paragraph should commence with the word "That".

The conclusion should be the "prayer", briefly and clearly expressing the particular object which the petitioners have in view in coming before Parliament. The petition should close with the formal words "And your petitioners, as in duty bound, will ever pray".

Canadian Overseas Telecommunications Corporation

This Crown Corporation now reports to Parliament through the Department of Communications. Its function is to operate all overseas communications from Canada—whether by radio, undersea cable or, international satellite.

The two earth stations at Mill Village, 80 miles south-west of Halifax, near the Nova Scotia coast, are an important COTC responsibility. They are among the most technically advanced establishments in the field of communications. Using Intersat I and III satellites, the stations relay telephone messages and television signals between Canada and Europe.

Enquiries should be addressed to:

Director of Information,
Canadian Overseas Telecommunications
Corporation,
625 Belmont St., Montreal 3, P.Q.

Canadian Transport Commission

The Railway Act stipulates that the Commission regulates telecommunication common carriers and approves all rates for public communications. The common carriers must submit to the Commission their proposed rates for approval. Furthermore, should anyone wish to appeal a decision or action of a common carrier, this can be done by filing a complaint to the Commission's headquarters:

Director of Information,
Canadian Transport Commission,
Congill Building,
275 Slater St., Ottawa 4.

Telesat Canada Corporation

The Corporation was created in 1969 by legislation presented by the Minister of Communications. Telesat will own and operate Canada's first domestic telecommunications satellite which is scheduled to go into operation early in 1972.

The Corporation has a unique form of equity financing. One third of the shares are held by the federal government. The second third will be sold to common carriers and the remaining shares will be made available to the general public.

The Canadian-designed satellite, built in Canada, will carry up to six television channels or, alternatively, as many as 3,600 voice circuits.

Telesat came into official existence with the appointment of its first president, David Golden, September 1st. Six provisional directors were appointed later, forming with Mr. Golden the seven-member board required by the Act.

Enquiries should be addressed to:

TELESAT Canada Corporation,
110 Argyle St., Room 202, Ottawa.

Indian and Eskimo Affairs Program

Prior to the passing of the British North America Act, the administration of Indian Affairs was the responsibility of several provinces. In 1867, it came under the jurisdiction of the Government of Canada. From January 1950 to December 1965, Indian Affairs were administered by a branch of the Department of Citizenship and Immigration. In January 1966, a new department was formed whereby Indian Affairs joined with the Department of Northern Affairs and National Resources under the joint title of Department of Indian Affairs and Northern Development.

The Program is composed of a headquarters staff at Ottawa, seven regional offices and 64 field agencies. Both headquarters and regional offices employ specialists in the field of education, economic development, community development, resource management, social welfare and engineering and construction. It works in close liaison with the Medical Services Directorate of the Department of National Health and Welfare to provide medical care to Indians.

It is the primary function of the Indian and Eskimo Affairs Program to assist the Indian people to participate fully in the social and economic life of the country. Underlying duties of the Program include the management of Indian reserves and surrendered lands, the administration of band funds, estates management, enfranchisement of Indians and the administration of treaty obligations.

DEPARTMENT OF INDUSTRY, TRADE AND COMMERCE

The Department of Industry, Trade and Commerce is responsible for the establishment, growth and efficiency of manufacturing, processing and tourist industries in Canada, together with the development of export trade and external trade policies.

It was established in 1969 as a result of the merger of the Departments of Industry and of Trade and Commerce.

Its organization emphasizes the essential relationship between industrial development and export promotion. The relationship becomes clear when two basic propositions are considered: first, to keep both domestic and foreign markets and to win new ones, Canada must competitively produce products that are in demand and, second to produce such products Canada needs both domestic and foreign markets to permit economies of scale and specialization.

There are five main functional groups within the Department: Trade and Industrial Policy, Office of Economics and Trade Analysis, Industry and Trade Development, Office of Tourism and Administration.

Trade and Industrial Policy

This group has responsibility within the department for export financing, external aid and participation in international organizations affecting trade; for negotiating and applying international trade and commodity agreements, and, generally, for the conduct of Canadian trade relations with other countries and the safeguarding and improvement of the terms of access for Canadian goods and services in export trade.

Additionally, it is concerned with all matters affecting industrial policy. Within this group there are three components: Office of Area Relations, Office of General Relations and Office of Industrial Policy Adviser.

Office of Area Relations has responsibility for policy studies and negotiations in the area of bilateral trade relations and for advice and assistance to Canadian exporters on foreign tariffs, customs and other regulations affecting trade abroad.

Office of General Relations is responsible for trade policy planning; relations with international organizations concerned with trade; providing advice on policy and procedures in external aid, export credits and other financing arrangements, and policy planning and negotiations of intergovernmental commodity agreements.

Office of Industrial Policy Adviser develops policy advice for the department and federal Government and initiates programs in areas affecting the growth, efficiency and competitiveness of Canadian industries in domestic and world markets . . . including industrial organization and financing, adjustment to changing conditions, manpower and labour relations and management practices.

Office of Economics and Trade Analysis

This component provides a continuing assessment of current and prospective economic changes abroad affecting Canadian trade; estimates of changes in the structure of industries and markets; analysis of capital investment in Canada and abroad, and economic research into industrial productivity and industry sector studies.

Industry and Trade Development

This group has responsibility for overall management and co-ordination of departmental operations in Canada and abroad as regards industrial and trade development; developing operational programs; consulting with other federal departments and provincial trade officials, and liaising with the Canadian business community and trade associations. Components in this grouping are: Operations, External Services, Office of Science and Technology, Office of Design Adviser and Office of Promotional Support Services.

The Operations component embraces the nine operating line branches and the program office of the department. Activities include the study of problems and opportunities in industry and product sectors; the direction of advisory services to manufacturers and exporters, and the formulation and implementation of assistance programs. The nine operational branches, organized along industry lines are:

Aerospace and Marine
Agriculture, Fisheries and Food Products
Apparel and Textiles
Chemicals
Electrical and Electronics
Machinery
Materials
Mechanical Transport
Wood Products

The branches perform five distinct but highly interdependent functions: study and analysis, program formulation, assistance program administration, trade development and service work.

External Services directs the implementation abroad of the Department's trade and industrial development programs; the collection of information on foreign economic, commercial, financial and technological conditions, and the provision of assistance and guidance in this regard to Canadian manufacturers and exporters and to Canadian government departments. As well, it directs the defence exports program and recommends policy changes in defence production sharing agreements with other governments. Its sub components are Trade Commissioner Service and International Defence Programs Branch.

Trade Commissioner Service promotes Canada's export trade and protects her commercial interests abroad. It acts as an export market consultant; secures market and credit information; brings foreign buyers in contact with Canadian sellers; recommends suitable agents, and supplies up-to-date information on export opportunities, terms of payment, tariffs, and import and exchange controls. It also maintains direct contact with individual companies.

International Defence Programs Branch explores opportunities for participation in foreign defence programs and identifies potential foreign government partners for specific Canadian industrial development programs and initiates negotiations necessary for the establishment of international agreements.

Office of Science and Technology identifies future technological trends and possibilities and formulates policies and programs to stimulate technical innovation in Canadian industry, develops such programs to the point where they may become part of the operating activities of the Department, and reviews the scientific aspects of departmental programs.

Office of the Design Adviser formulates and develops programs based on its own study and analysis and on recommendations of the National Design Council to promote design improvements in Canadian products; advises the federal government on promotion of good design and design awareness, and serves as a secretariat for the National Design Council.

Office of Promotional Services directs activities which support or supplement industrial and trade development programs of the operating branches. This includes providing specialist services in the areas of public relations and promotion; organizing, storing and disseminating company, industrial and commercial intelligence; and arranging for service to firms on all matters within the department's responsibility through regional offices in eight major Canadian centres. It also includes the planning, scheduling, developing and managing of trade fairs abroad and incoming and outgoing trade missions . . . methods of bringing buyers and sellers together.

Office of Tourism is responsible for directing the promotion of travel by foreign nationals to Canada and for studies and analysis of the Canadian travel industry. As well, it has responsibility for managing these sectors of the department concerned with planning and implementing policies and programs related to the promotion of travel to Canada, the co-ordination of Canada's total tourism effort abroad, the promotion of travel by Canadians in Canada and the growth and development of the Canadian tourist industry.

INDUSTRIAL DEVELOPMENT PROGRAMS

Following are the industrial development programs managed by the department:

PROGRAM FOR THE ADVANCEMENT OF INDUSTRIAL TECHNOLOGY (PAIT)

The basic aim of this program is to help industry up-grade its technology and expand its innovation activity by under-writing specific development projects which involve a significant advance in technology and which, if successful, offer good prospects for commercial exploitation in civil markets. Support is normally provided for up to 50% of the cost of the development project. Assistance under the program is available to individual Canadian companies for development projects to be carried out and exploited in Canada.

More detailed information on the program may be obtained in writing:

PAIT,
Department of Industry, Trade & Commerce,
Ottawa 4, Ontario,
Canada.

GENERAL ADJUSTMENT ASSISTANCE PROGRAM (GAAP)

This program is designed to assist manufacturers in Canada to restructure their operations to either take advantage of an export opportunity arising out of the Kennedy Round Tariff Agreement or to improve their competitive position if they have been seriously injured or are threatened with serious injury as a result of Kennedy Round reductions in Canadian tariffs.

To be eligible, a firm must be a manufacturer in Canada, be affected by the Kennedy Round Tariff Agreement and be unable to obtain adequate financing on reasonable terms and conditions without Government insurance.

Assistance is made available in three forms. First, Government insurance against the risk of loss on loans approved by the General Adjustment Assistance Board and made by private lenders for the purpose of financing viable restructuring proposals. Secondly, direct government loans to those injured or threatened with injury and who cannot obtain the financing with Government insurance. Third, grants to eligible manufacturers to provide up to 50% of the cost of consulting services needed to develop an effective restructuring proposal.

Inquiries may be directed to the General Adjustment Assistance Board, Department of Industry, Trade & Commerce, Ottawa 4, Ontario.

INDUSTRIAL RESEARCH AND DEVELOPMENT INCENTIVES ACT (IRDIA)

The Industrial Research and Development Incentives Act is to assist Canadian industry, to undertake new scientific research and development programs, expand existing ones, and provide well-equipped facilities for such work. The incentives are available to all taxable Canadian corporations.

Grants will equal 25 per cent of capital expenditures made by an applicant for scientific research and development carried out in Canada in the year, and 25 per cent of the increase in eligible current expenditures made by the applicant in Canada over the average of such expenditures in a base period consisting of the five immediately preceding years. Grants made under the Act are exempt from federal income tax and do not reduce the capital cost of assets for the purpose of claiming capital cost allowance under the Income Tax Act.

Complete information, including application forms, required to make an application for a grant under the Act may be obtained by writing to the IRDIA Program Office, Department of Industry, Trade and Commerce, Ottawa 4, Ontario, Canada.

AUTOMOTIVE ADJUSTMENT ASSISTANCE PROGRAM (AAA)

The Automotive Adjustment Assistance Program for the automotive parts industry was introduced by the Federal Government on June 28, 1965.

This program developed from the Canada-United States Automotive Agreement which provides for limited tariff-free trade in automobiles and automobile parts between the two countries. The Automotive Adjustment Assistance Program is designed to give assistance to firms desirous of taking advantage of the new opportunities provided by the Agreement, but which are unable to do so for lack of sufficient capital for expansion.

The Automotive Adjustment Assistance Program is administered by the Adjustment Assistance Board. The Board is authorized to make loans at a rate of interest which is the sum of the rate of interest charged to Crown Corporations for a similar term and two percentage points to enable eligible manufacturers of automotive parts, tooling manufacturers and suppliers of materials to expand or modernize existing facilities or to acquire new plant and equipment, and for working capital. Loans for lands and buildings may be repayable over a maximum 20 year period, while those for machinery and equipment are made for a period not to exceed 10 years.

TARIFF REMISSIONS

Firms engaged in the manufacture of automotive parts may apply for tariff remissions on imported machinery and equipment automotive parts, accessories and tooling when such machinery and equipment are not available from Canadian manufacturers in time to meet production schedules. They may also apply for remission of sales tax levied against such duty.

In order to obtain remissions of duties and sales tax, a firm must make an application to the Adjustment Assistance Board, which will examine each application to determine whether the machinery and equipment could have been obtained from Canadian producers within reasonable time.

Applications will be considered for machinery and equipment imported on or after August 1, 1965. Machinery and equipment imported before that date are eligible for consideration if they were for use initially in the production of 1967 model year requirements.

Inquiries regarding the Adjustment Assistance and Tariff Remission Programs should be made to the Secretary, Adjustment Assistance Board, Department of Industry, Trade and Commerce, Ottawa, Canada.

BUILDING EQUIPMENT, ACCESSORIES AND MATERIALS PROGRAM (BEAM)

The Building Equipment, Accessories and Materials Program has been established to help increase productivity and efficiency in the manufacture and use of building equipment, accessories and materials. The Department of Industry, Trade and Commerce in co-operation with industry advisory committee seek the following objectives:

- Establishment of a construction information system to obtain, catalogue, keep up to date and transmit useful information about building products to manufacturers and users.
- Adoption of modular co-ordination.
- Industrialization of the building process by encouraging greater factory fabrication and pre-assembly of building materials and components.
- Wider application of the National Building Code, more adequate standards and improved methods of assessing new products and systems.
- Design improvements through awards programs, research, development and innovation.

For further information on the BEAM program write: General Director, Materials Branch, Departmentof Industry, Trade and Commerce, Ottawa 4, Ontario.

DEFENCE INDUSTRY PRODUCTIVITY PROGRAM (DIP)

This program is designed to develop and substain the technological capability of Canadian defence industry for the purpose of defence export sales or civil export sales arising from that capability. Costs of selected projects are shared by the Department and the Canadian firm concerned and, in some instances, by the governments of other NATO countries.Details are available from: Department of Industry, Trade and Commerce.

MACHINERY PROGRAM (MACH)

A key element in the Department's overall program of assisting industrial development is the Machinery Program. It entails a two-fold approach to encouraging the expansion and efficiency of Canadian manufacturing by (1) providing a reasonable measure of tariff protection to machinery manufacturers and (2) enabling users of machinery to obtain remission of duty on imported capital equipment which is not available from Canadian production. The program deals with all machinery and equipment imported under tariff item 42700-1, which covers the bulk of our machinery imports, approximately $700 millions per annum. Annual remissions of duty under the program amounts to approximately $45 millions.

An important supplementary benefit of the Machinery Program is that it provides detailed information on the kinds of machinery required by Canadian industry which are not available from Canadian production. This information is compiled by Machinery Branch for annual publication in the report "Machinery Program Analysis".

Applications for remission of duty under the program are assessed by the Machinery Branch and referred to the Machinery and Equipment Advisory Board which is responsible for advising the Minister as to their eligibility for remission. Applications and supplementary information are available at all Customs Ports, and from the Secretary, Machinery and Equipment Advisory Board, 112 Kent Street, Ottawa.

PHARMACEUTICAL INDUSTRY DEVELOPMENT ASSISTANCE (PIDA)

The Pharmaceutical Industry Development Assistance program, introduced in April 1968, is designed to help individual firms improve their competitive position in both domestic and export markets. Under PIDA, direct loans at commercial interest rates are available to companies, or groups of companies, which wish to develop their capabilities to manufacture and market prescription drugs at more competitive prices.

The program is administered by an Advisory Committee which reviews applications from companies. Each application should contain a comprehensive plan indicating how the company intends to reorganize, expand or develop its operations. The firms must have, or be able to acquire, the necessary technical and managerial skills in the areas of manufacturing, technology, marketing, research and development and general and financial management. They must also be in a position to show that they cannot obtain financing from other sources to achieve these objectives. The loans may be made for periods not to exceed twenty years for land and buildings, or ten years for any other purpose. Financing is also available to cover the cost of feasibility studies on a joint cost sharing basis.

Inquiries should be directed to PIDA,
Chemicals Branch,
Department of Industry, Trade and Commerce,
Ottawa.

SHIP CONSTRUCTION SUBSIDY REGULATIONS (SCSR)

On January 1, 1966, a new schedule of subsidy payments on ship construction was inaugurated at a level of 25% for a period of three years.

Starting June 1, 1969, this rate will be reduced by ½% every three months until a subsidy level of 17% is reached for vessels completed on and after March 1, 1973. The current rate of subsidy on steel fishing trawlers is 35%. On the introduction of the new subsidy rate, the Canadian content requirement in the administration of the subsidy has been withdrawn to enable the industry to take full advantage of the free entry provided under Canadian Tariff for various items used in ship construction. The accelerated depreciation of 33⅓% straight line for ships built in Canada has been continued.

Section 20 of the Income Tax Act provides fiscal advantages to persons who build vessels in Canada; this provision remains in effect until the end of 1973.

NATIONAL RESEARCH COUNCIL OF CANADA

Administration Bldg., Montreal Rd., Ottawa 7

The National Research Council of Canada is an agency of the Canadian government which undertakes, assists, and promotes scientific and industrial research in Canada.

Since its founding in 1916, NRC has played a major role in Canada's scientific development. Today it serves as a national science laboratory, a patron of basic science, and a link between the scientific interests of government, industry, and Canadian universities.

The National Research Laboratories are organized into the following divisions: Biochemistry, Biology, Building Research, Chemistry (this division includes both pure and applied chemistry), Mechanical Engineering, Radio and Electrical Engineering, National Aeronautical Establishment, Physics, (this division includes both pure and applied physics), the Atlantic Regional Laboratory in Halifax, Nova Scotia, and the Prairie Regional Laboratory in Saskatchewan.

There is a constant flow of personnel and information between NRC laboratories and those of industry and roughly 70 per cent of the Council's own effort involves applied research intended for industrial use. Contract research on specific projects and a wide variety of testing and standardization work are undertaken. Inventions from NRC laboratories are carried through the patent stage, then made available for manufacture through Canadian Patents and Development Limited, a subsidiary of NRC.

For over 50 years NRC's Associate Committees (now numbering over 40) with members drawn from universities, industry, and government laboratories, have provided an important instrument for studying, coordinating and promoting research on problems of national significance.

New industrial research projects are supported on a shared-cost basis through NRC's Industrial Research Assistance Program begun in 1962. Companies choose, direct and control their own research projects and staff, and receive support for from three to five years by annual grants, subject only to satisfactory progress.

NRC's Technical Information Service, established in 1945, maintains direct contact with industry through a system of field offices and provides, without cost, information and advice on technological matters.

The National Science Library provides communication services of many different kinds to the scientific and industrial communities of Canada, based on one of the world's outstanding collections in the fields of science and technology.

The Council is the main source of direct aid to scientific research in the universities. A system of postgraduate scholarships and postdoctorate fellowships is provided for the assistance of students who have shown promise of research ability. Funds are also provided to the universities for the installation of major items of equipment, and for general research expenditures.

DEPARTMENT OF NATIONAL REVENUE

From Confederation on July 1, 1867, until May 17, 1918, Customs and Inland Revenue Acts were administered by two separate government departments known as the Department of Customs, constituted by statute (31 Vic. Chap. 43), and the Department of Inland Revenue constituted by statute (31 Vic. Chap. 49). On May 18, 1918, by Order in Council these two Departments were amalgamated and combined under the name of the Department of Customs and Inland Revenue and under one Minister of the Crown.

On April 1, 1921, the name Inland Revenue was dropped and the Department of Customs and Excise constituted (11-12 Geo. V. 26).

The collection of Income Tax was placed under the control of the Minister of Customs and Excise on April 1, 1924, and by the Department of National Revenue Act (17 Geo. V. Chap. 34) the name was changed to the Department of National Revenue.

PUBLIC SERVICE COMMISSION

The Public Service Commission was first established in 1908 under the provisions of the Civil Service Amendment Act, 1908 (S.C. 1907-08, Chapter 15) which introduced the principle of selection by order of merit as established by competitive examination. The Act did not, however, apply to positions outside of Ottawa. The Civil Service Act, 1918 (S.C. 1918, Chapter 12)—placed the entire service under the Commission. On April 1, 1962 a new Act came into force (S.C. 1960-61, Chapter 57) preserving the independence of the Commission and maintaining the fundamental principles of the merit system.

When the Public Service Employment Act (S.C. 1966-67, Chapter 71), March 13, 1967, came into effect the Commission was relieved of its responsibilities for classification, determination of pay and conditions of work, for consultation with staff associations on matters now the subject of collective bargaining. The major portion of its energies is devoted to staffing the public service (an expanded jurisdiction including the former civil service) according to the merit principle. It can delegate its authority wherever practical, though not its responsibility to Parliament. The Commission also hears appeals on appointments, demotion, or release, and offers training and staff development services.

The Commission, which reports to Parliament, consists of a Chairman and two additional members, appointed by the Governor in Council. A Commissioner holds office during good behaviour for a period of ten years from the date of appointment, and may be removed during that period only by the Governor in Council upon address of the Senate and the House of Commons. On the expiration of the first or a subsequent term of office a Commissioner may be reappointed for a further term of ten years. A Commissioner may not hold any other office in the Public Service or engage in any other employment.

The general powers and duties of the Commission as laid down in the Act are: (a) appoint or provide for the appointment of qualified persons to or from within the Public Service in accordance with the provisions and principles of this Act; (b) operate and assist deputy heads in the operation of staff training and development programs in the Public Service; (c) engage competent persons to assist the Commission in the performance of its duties; (d) establish boards to make recommendations to the Commission on matters referred to such boards under section 6, to render decisions on appeals made to such boards under sections 21 and 31 and to render decisions on matters referred to such boards under section 32; (e) report to the Governor in Council upon such matters arising out of or relating to the administration or operation of this Act and the regulations as the Commission considers desirable; and (f) perform such other duties and functions with reference to the Public Service as are assigned to it by the Governor in Council.

TREASURY BOARD

Confederation Building, Wellington St., Ottawa 4

The Treasury Board was proclaimed a Department on October 1, 1966 under the Government Organization Act 1966. It is presided over by the President of the Treasury Board appointed by Commission under the Great Seal of Canada.

The Treasury Board is a committee of the Queen's Privy Council for Canada. The committee consists of the President of the Treasury Board, the Minister of Finance, and four other members of the Queen's Privy Council for Canada who are nominated from time to time by the Governor in Council.

The Treasury Board Secretariat, headed by the Secretary of the Treasury Board, is the administrative arm of the Board. In its day-to-day operations it advises the Government on the optimum allocation of public funds among Government Programs and promotes the efficient and effective use of the Government's manpower and material resources. It provides analytical support to the Treasury Board in their resource allocation decisions; promotes the effectiveness of departmental programs; and develops for the approval of Parliament the Estimates of the Government. It promotes the effectiveness of the manpower resources of the Public Service by developing and administering policies on such matters as compensation and conditions of employment, classification, training and development, manpower planning and employee—employer relations; and it develops techniques to evaluate the effectiveness and efficiency of programs and institutions, prepares plans for organizational changes, and implements or monitors the implementation of approved changes.

INCOME TAXES

(Imposed by Federal Legislation)

The Government of Canada levies income taxes on corporations and individuals in accordance with The Income Tax Act as enacted by Chapter 148, Revised Statutes of Canada 1952, as amended.

CORPORATIONS

Rates of tax applicable to taxable income for the year 1969 are as follows

18% on the first $35,000 of taxable income.
47% on taxable income in excess of $35,000.
Plus Old Age Security Tax of 3% of taxable income.

Plus a temporary surtax of 3% of the amount of the tax payable by most corporations on that portion of their taxable income earned after December 31, 1967. The surtax is not imposed on the 3% Old Age Security Tax.

Where a corporation has taxable income earned in the provinces of Canada in a taxation year an abatement in respect of provincial taxes of federal taxes exclusive of Old Age Security Tax and before deduction therefrom of any amount in respect of foreign taxes and provincial logging taxes is authorized. The amount of this tax abatement for 1969 is equal to 10% of the corporation's taxable income earned in a province but not that earned in the Northwest Territories, the Yukon Territory or outside Canada, such taxable income in either case being determined in accordance with federal regulations.

Deductions—

Deductions which are allowed under certain circumstances in the determination of the taxable income of a corporation include:

Business losses incurred by the corporation in the five previous years and in the immediately following year.
Charitable donations up to 10% of income.
Dividends received from taxable Canadian corporations.

INDIVIDUALS

400,000	269,070	plus 80%	on remainder

The tax calculated by applying the above table and reduced by an amount equal to 20% of the dividends (less appropriate charges) received from taxable Canadian corporations, is known as "basic tax".

The "basic tax" may be reduced by the following abatements or deductions, where applicable, in arriving at an individual's Federal Income Tax.

Abatement for Provincial Taxes:

Where an individual is subject to tax under provincial legislation and resided in a province on the last day of a year (or at date of death or date of departure from Canada) and had no income earned in the year outside a province the amount of the "abatement for provincial taxes" in 1969 is 28% of "basic tax" in respect of income earned in all provinces except Quebec and 50% of "basic tax" in respect of income earned in Quebec. Where the individual is subject to tax under provincial legislation and resided in a province on the last day of the year and had income earned in the year outside a province or if the individual did not reside in a province on the last day of the year but had income earned in the year in a province the amount of the deduction is an amount that bears the same relation to the "abatement for provincial taxes" that his income earned in the year in a province bears to his income for the year.

General Abatement:

All individuals may claim an abatement for 1969 equal to the lesser of $20.00 or 20% of the "basic tax".

Other Deductions:

Under certain circumstances an individual may be entitled to a deduction from tax in respect of payments he has made for foreign taxes or provincial logging taxes.

Individuals are also subject to an old age security tax of the lesser of 4% of their taxable income or $240 and, in addition, individuals are subject to a temporary surtax equal to 3% of the "basic tax" in excess of $200, and a social development tax of the lesser of 2% of their taxable income or $120.

Personal Exemptions

$2,000 for married status.
$1,000 for single status.
$300 for each dependent who has not attained the age of 16 years before the end of the year.
$550 for each dependent who has attained the age of 16 years before the end of the year.
$500 additional if taxpayer has attained age of 70 before year end.
$500 additional for a taxpayer who is 65 or over but under 70 and no Old Age Security pension has been authorized to be paid to him for any month in the year.
$500 additional if taxpayer is totally blind or confined throughout the taxation year to a bed or wheelchair and does not include the amount of remuneration for an attendant or care in a nursing home in calculating a deduction for medical expenses.

Other Deductions

Other deductions which are allowed under certain circumstances in determination of taxable income include:

Charitable donations up to 10% of net income.
Medical expenses in excess of 3% of net income with exception of those for which taxpayer is reimbursed under Hospital Insurance and Diagnostic Services Act.

In lieu of the two types of deductions set out above, an individual may deduct a round amount of $100.

Union and professional membership dues.
Students may deduct certain tuition fees.

Contributions under a registered Retirement Savings Plan up to the lesser of $2,500 or 20% of earned income of the annuitant for the year, excepting where he is also covered by a registered Pension Plan, in which case the deduction for the combined contributions must not exceed the lesser of $1,500 or 20% of earned income.

Business losses incurred by an individual in the five previous years and in the immediately following year.

PAYMENT

Corporations—

For a taxation year commencing after November 1968 and before December 1969, income tax is payable in 10 monthly instalments commencing on or before the last day of the 3rd month after the start of the corporation's fiscal period. Payments are required to be made on or before the last day of each month thereafter ending at the close of the fiscal period. The remainder of the tax payable for the year must be paid on or before the last day of the 3rd month after the close of the corporation's fiscal period.

For a taxation year commencing after November 1969, income tax is payable in 12 monthly instalments commencing on or before the last day of the 1st month after the start of the corporation's fiscal period. Payments are required to be made on or before the last day of each month thereafter ending at the close of the fiscal period. The remainder of the tax payable for the year must be paid on or before the last day of the 3rd month after the close of the corporation's fiscal period.

Individuals—

Tax deductions made by employer from salaries or wages—otherwise quarterly payments based upon estimated tax. Tax return must be filed by April 30 of the year following.

Limitations of space prevent complete reproduction of The Income Tax Act, which contains numerous exceptions and limitations to the content outlined above. It is, therefore, recommended that the reader refer to the Act in specific cases. Copies of the Act may be obtained from the Queen's Printer, Department of Public Printing and Stationery, Ottawa.

INCOME TAXES

(Imposed by Provincial Legislation)

All provinces of Canada (exclusive of the North West Territories and the Yukon) levy taxes on income of both corporations and individuals. With the exception of the taxes levied by the Province of Quebec and the tax levied by the Province of Ontario on corporations all taxes levied by the several provinces on income are collected for them by the Government of Canada under the terms of collection agreements entered into between it and the several provinces.

CORPORATIONS

In all provinces other than Ontario and Quebec the tax is levied on corporations having a permanent establishment in the province at any time in the year at a rate applied to taxable income earned in the province in the year computed in accordance with federal regulations. The 1969 rate for Manitoba, and Saskatchewan is 11%, Newfoundland is 13%, Alberta is 10½%, and for other provinces, exclusive of Ontario and Quebec, is 10%.

In Ontario tax is levied on corporations in accordance with the provisions of The Corporations Tax Act, Revised Statutes of Ontario, 1960, c.73 and amendments. In Quebec tax is levied on corporations in accordance with the provisions of the Corporation Tax Act, revised Statutes of Quebec, 1964, c.67 and amendments. Reference should be made to these statutes for details.

INDIVIDUALS

In all provinces a tax is levied on individuals who resided in the province on the last day of the year (or on date of death or date of departure from Canada) and on individuals who were not resident in the province on the last day of the year (or on date of death or date of departure from Canada) but had income earned in the province during the year. Income earned in the province during the year is determined under federal regulations. Where the individual resided in the province on the last day of the year (or on date of death or date of departure from Canada) and had no income earned in the taxation year outside the province the tax is computed as a percentage of the federal tax exclusive of Old Age Security Tax, Temporary Surtax and Social Development Tax and before any deduction therefrom in respect of foreign taxes and provincial logging taxes. The 1969 percentage in Manitoba and Saskatchewan is 33%, Newfoundland and Alberta is 30½%, New Brunswick is 35½%, and for other provinces, exclusive of Quebec is 28%. Where the individual resided in a province on the last day of the taxation year (or on date of death or date of departure from Canada) but had income earned in the year outside a province or where the individual did not reside in a province on the last day of the year (or on date of death or date of departure from Canada) but had income earned in the year in a province the tax is the amount that bears the same relation to the percentage of the federal tax, exclusive of Old Age Security Tax, Temporary Surtax and Social Development Tax and before any deduction therefrom in respect of foreign taxes and provincial logging taxes, that his income earned in the year in the province bears to his income for the year.

For particulars of the tax rate in Quebec reference should be made to the Provincial Income Tax Act, revised Statutes of Quebec, 1964, c.69 and amendments thereto.

ROYAL CANADIAN MOUNTED POLICE

Honorary Commissioner, Her Majesty Queen Elizabeth II

In 1873 the North West Mounted Police was constituted (36 Vic. Chap. 35) to provide Police protection in the unsettled portions of the North West. In 1904 the title "Royal" was given to the Force. In 1920 the Dominion Police was amalgamated with this Force and the name changed to "Royal Canadian Mounted Police." The headquarters was moved from Regina to Ottawa and the Force may now be called upon to perform duties in any portion of the Dominion. In 1928 the Royal Canadian Mounted Police absorbed the Saskatchewan Provincial Police and in 1932 the Provincial Police Forces of Alberta, Manitoba, New Brunswick, Nova Scotia and Prince Edward Island were absorbed in like manner. During the year 1932, the Force also assumed the administration of the Preventive Service Branch of the Department of National Revenue. On August 1, 1950, the duties of the Newfoundland Rangers and certain members of the Newfoundland Constabulary were taken over by the R.C.M.P., and on the 15th of the same month the British Columbia Provincial Police were similarly absorbed. These arrangements were made by agreements between the respective Provincial Governments concerned and the Federal Government. The term of engagement in the Royal Canadian Mounted Police is five years. Recruits are trained at Regina, Saskatchewan. At a recent date the Force had 133 horses, 32 Police Service Dogs, 2466 cars, 272 trucks, 20 motorcycles, 22 aircraft, 58 boats, with a total strength of the Force, including Civilian Employees 12,004.

CANADA'S ARMED FORCES

The Canadian Armed Forces are controlled and administered by an integrated Canadian Forces Headquarters at Ottawa. The Chief of the Defence Staff is the senior officer of the forces and of this Headquarters. The Headquarters is organized under four Branch Heads—the Vice Chief of the Defence Staff, Chief of Personnel, Chief of Technical Services and the Comptroller General.

THE MARITIME ELEMENT OF THE CANADIAN ARMED FORCES

The primary role of the Maritime Element of the Canadian Armed Forces continues to be anti-submarine warfare which is organic to all forms of maritime operations. Projects are underway to improve the capability of Canadian warships in other forms of warfare, particularly anti-air defence, fire support for land operations, defence against other warships and sealift for land forces. It is planned that the Canadian Maritime Force by itself or in conjunction with the maritime forces of our allies will have a good capability for the direct protection of Canada, as a contribution to NATO maritime forces, and for peacekeeping/peace-restoring tasks.

Maritime Command comes under the central authority of the Chief of the Defence Staff in Ottawa. The Commander, Maritime Command, at Halifax, N.S., exercises operational and administrative command of all ships, aircraft, submarines and Canadian Forces Bases assigned to Maritime Command on the Atlantic and Pacific Coasts. The Deputy-Commander, Maritime Command, as Commander, Maritime Forces Pacific, is located at Esquimalt, B.C., and exercises command and control of forces in the Pacific area. Included in Maritime Command are the following Canadian Forces Bases: Halifax, Esquimalt, Greenwood, Summerside, Shearwater, and Comox.

There are naval elements in the Canadian Defence Liaison Staffs at London and Washington. As a result of Canada's NATO commitments, officers with maritime experience serve on the staffs of: The Supreme Allied Commander, Atlantic, at Norfolk, Va., in the U.S.A.; Commander-in-Chief, Eastern Atlantic Area, at Northwood in the United Kingdom; and Commander-in-Chief, Western Atlantic Area, at Norfolk, Va., The Commander Maritime Command holds the NATO appointment of Commander, Canadian Atlantic Sub-Area.

With the continuing process of integration, officers and men of the Maritime Element of the Canadian Armed Forces are also serving in other functional commands such as Training Command, Material Command and Mobile Command. This re-organization has also resulted in the Canadian Forces Base concept whereby the support functions of the Navy, Army, and Air Force in a particular area have been amalgamated into one entity, the Base, which serves all services and commands in that location.

In August, 1969, the Maritime Element of the Canadian Armed Forces had 39 ships in commission. This figure included three "O" and one "Tench" class submarines. A third Operational Support ship HMCS PRESERVER is scheduled to commission in February, 1970.

Sea trials to evaluate the development of the hydrofoil ship HMCS BRAS D'OR are continuing. The remaining ships of the RESTIGOUCHE class are following HMCS TERRA NOVA in a four year conversion programme which will greatly enhance their operational ability. Four new destroyer escorts, with helicopter capabilities, are scheduled to enter service in the early 1970s.

ROYAL CANADIAN SEA CADET CORPS

Organized December 16th, 1895 by the Navy League of Canada, Sea Cadet Corps were subsequently organized in various centres across Canada and up to June 1st, 1941, these Cadet Services were operated by the Navy League. Following June 1st, 1941 the Royal Canadian Navy, upon invitation of the Navy League of Canada became a joint partner with the league with respect to its Royal Canadian Sea Cadet movement.

Since then the Royal Canadian Navy and subsequently the Canadian Forces have assumed the responsibility of certain jurisdiction, training and supervision of Sea Cadet Corps, and the operation of summer training establishments. The Navy League has been responsible for administration and general operation of Corps and the provision of Corps training quarters.

The Royal Canadian Sea Cadets

The Navy League of Canada, comprising 14 autonomous divisions under the National Council, sponsors the RCSCC, with the Canadian Forces being responsible for training, administration, and the furnishing of uniforms and equipment. There are 182 authorized corps in Canada. On January 31, 1969 there were 11,300 Sea Cadets in Canada.

THE LAND ELEMENT OF THE CANADIAN ARMED FORCES

ORGANIZATION

The Land Element of the Canadian Armed Forces is under the central authority of the Chief of the Defence Staff and controlled and administered by Canadian Forces Headquarters in Ottawa.

The land element comprises the Canadian Army (Regular) and the Reserves. The operational land elements of the Canadian Armed Forces are under control of Headquarters Mobile Command and consist of a Canadian Mechanized Brigade Group, four combat groups and an airborne regiment, together with supporting elements for administration, logistics and training.

OPERATIONS

In fulfilment of our military obligation under the North Atlantic Treaty, Canada has continued to provide ground forces, one Mechanized Brigade Group, for the defence of Western Europe. The Headquarters for the Brigade Group is at Soest. In addition, Canada has assigned two Battalion Groups to the Supreme Allied Commander Europe for employment as part of Allied Command Europe Mobile Force.

These Battalions are located in Canada and can be air-lifted as required.

Canadian membership in the International Supervisory Commissions of Viet Nam, Laos and Cambodia resulted in the Canadian Army providing 30 officers and men for Truce Supervisory duties.

The Land Element of the Canadian Armed Forces provides 17 officers to the United Nations Military Observer Group in India and Pakistan and 20 officers to the United Nations Truce Supervision Organization in Palestine as well as a contingent totalling 567 officers and men to the United Nations Force in Cyprus. In addition plans are in being to be able to provide additional forces for service under or in support of the United Nations. Canada also contributes 2 officers to the observer group Nigeria.

Canada is providing the Governments of Ghana with Armed Forces personnel to train and advise their military forces. This contribution is 16 officers and men.

In Canada officers and officer cadets from Tanzania, Ghana, Kenya, Korea, Singapore, Uganda, Zambia, Jamaica and Malaysia are receiving training in Canadian Armed Forces schools.

The Land Element of the Canadian Armed Forces is responsible for the conduct of those aspects of National Survival and Civil Defence operations which were assigned to the Department of National Defence by the Civil Defence Order, PC1959/656 as amended by PC1963/993.

EQUIPMENT

The Canadian Army Equipment Development Program continues to concentrate on those fields particularly suited to Canadian capabilities and in which there are special Canadian needs. Participation in materiel and non-materiel standardization programs with the United States, the United Kingdom, Australia and NATO continues. Additional agreements reached with allied armies affecting procedures and equipment enhanced their capability for cooperative operations.

The M113 Armoured Personnel Carrier has been introduced into service to provide the mobility required of modern land combat forces. Both light and heavy helicopters together with various types of fixed wing "conventional" aircraft continue to be procured in order to provide a better operational and training capability.

In addition the Brigade Group in Europe have been issued with the M109 Self-propelled 155 millimeter Howitzer replacing the less mobile and shorter range 105mm howitzer.

THE MILITIA

A Region Commander may authorize members of the Militia to be paid up to 75 days pay in one year. The majority of militiamen, however, receive about 40 days of paid training at evening parades, weekend and summer training. Selected militiamen can be attached to regular force units for short periods.

THE REGULAR OFFICER TRAINING PLAN (ROTP)

The Regular Officer Training Plan is in effect at the three Canadian Services Colleges and at all Canadian universities and affiliated colleges which have contingents of the COTC. Training consists of academic and military studies, drill and physical training during the academic year; the summer term is devoted to practical training at military establishments.

THE RESERVE OFFICER UNIVERSITY TRAINING PLAN (ROUTP)

The Canadian Officers Training Corps has now been replaced by an off Campus Training program under the ROUTP. The Militia element of this plan provides the opportunity of entry into the Reserve Force for undergraduates who wish to qualify as officers in the Primary Reserve.

Training consists of an equivalent of 15 days drills at the local Militia unit during the academic year, and one summer of 16 weeks devoted to practical training conducted at a military establishment.

ROYAL CANADIAN ARMY CADETS

Colonel-in-Chief: The Prince Philip, Duke of Edinburgh

Address—Canadian Forces Headquarters, for Deputy Chief Operations and Reserves.

The Army Cadet organization stems from the "Drill Associations" formed in Colleges and Schools during and after the American Civil War, 1861-1866. The first cadet corps, as such, date from the year 1879.

In 1942, the Department of National Defence expanded the Army Cadet organization, standardized the training, clothing and equipment. Officers of the Cadet Instructors List, a sub-component of the Reserve Force, have, with assistance from the Canadian Armed Forces, the responsibility for the training and administration of Army Cadets.

The strength of the Royal Canadian Army Cadets as of 31 Jan. 1969 was 52,135 cadets enrolled in 458 Cadet Corps.

Cadet summer camps are located at Aldershot, N.S.; Valcartier, P.Q.; Ipperwash, Ont.; Shilo, Man.; Banff, Alta.; and Vernon, B.C.

THE AIR ELEMENT OF THE CANADIAN ARMED FORCES

The Royal Canadian Air Force passed into history with the proclamation of the Canadian Armed Forces Re-Organization Act on 1 February, 1968. The foundations of an Air Force for Canada were laid during the First World War when nearly 22,000 Canadians flew as members of the British Air Forces.

The Air element of the Canadian Forces comes under the central authority of the Chief of the Defence Staff and is administered by Canadian Forces Headquarters at Ottawa.

The role of the Air element is to provide operational forces for:

(a) A contribution to the air defence of North America as specified by the NORAD agreements.
(b) An air component to the NATO forces in Europe.
(c) Airlift and support operations for the armed forces in Canada and overseas.
(d) Air search and rescue and co-ordination of marine search and rescue in Canada and approaches thereto.
(e) A contribution to National Survival Operations.
(f) United Nations military operations, as agreed in each instance by the Government of Canada.

The organization includes approximately 24 flying squadrons and two missile squadrons of the Regular forces and 6 flying squadrons of the Air Reserve. The Reserve squadrons are assigned a light transport and emergency and rescue role. Three of the Regular flying squadrons and two Surface-to-Air missile squadrons (SAM) contribute to the air defence of North America as a component of NORAD; 6 squadrons are assigned to the NATO air forces of Western Europe; 5 squadrons are required for Canadian Forces air transport operations at home and abroad, and one tactical support and reconnaisance squadron operates in Canada. Two transport helicopter squadrons contribute to the mobility of the Land Forces. There are also four Communications and Rescue squadrons based in Canada.

Canada is providing the Government of Ghana with Armed Forces personnel to train and advise its military forces. In Canada, officers, officer cadets, and airmen from Ghana, Jamaica, Kenya, Tanzania, Zambia, Uganda, Singapore and Korea are receiving training in Canadian Forces training schools.

The strength of the Air Element is approximately 42,500 regular officers and men, together with about 900 Reserves.

Air Defence Command operates the Pinetree Line as an integral part of North American Air Defence Command (NORAD) and contributes to the manning of the Distant Early Warning Line. (DEW)

ROYAL CANADIAN AIR CADETS

Air Cadet activities in Canada are sponsored and administered by the Air Cadet League of Canada. The League is a voluntary civilian organization created solely for this purpose and was formed in 1940 to provide preliminary aviation training for potential members of the Royal Canadian Air Force. In peacetime the object of Air Cadet training is to produce better citizens through air-age education. The Canadian Armed Forces work jointly with the League and provides training personnel, syllabi and equipment.

During the war, the Royal Canadian Air Cadets reached a peak enrollment of 30,000. The authorized peacetime strength ceiling is 28,000 and the strength as of 31 Jan., 1969 was approximately 29,074 enrolled in 368 squadrons across Canada. Air Cadet Training is carried out in more than 250 communities, both large and small, from Newfoundland to British Columbia.

THE CANADIAN MILITARY COLLEGES.

(For Staff lists, see Index)

Royal Military College of Canada, Kingston, Ont.
Royal Roads Military College, Victoria, B.C.
Collège militaire royal de Saint-Jean, Saint-Jean, P.Q.

The Royal Military College of Canada was founded in 1876 at Kingston, Ont., Royal Roads Military College was established in 1941 near Victoria, B.C., as a school for naval officers. In September, 1948, both colleges were constituted as the Canadian Services Colleges to provide a joint educational and training program for the three Armed Forces of Canada. Collège militaire royal de Saint-Jean was opened in 1952 at Saint-Jean, Quebec, as the third member of the Canadian Services Colleges. In 1967 the Canadian Services Colleges were redesignated as the Canadian Military Colleges in keeping with unification of the Canadian Forces.

The role of the colleges is to educate and train cadets for careers as commissioned officers of the Canadian Forces. Courses of instruction are designed to develop character, to provide a balanced and liberal education, and to provide a basic military education.

The Royal Military College of Canada accepts senior matriculants and offers a four year course and university degrees in Arts, Engineering and Science. Royal Roads Military College accepts senior matriculants who, on successful completion of the second year, go to the Royal Military College of Canada for their third and fourth years. Collège militaire royal de Saint-Jean accepts junior matriculants who enter the Preparatory Year and spend three years at the college. After successful completion of the formal second year at the college, cadets proceed to the Royal Military College of Canada for their third and fourth years.

The unified service program at the Royal Military College, Royal Roads Military College and Collège militaire royal de Saint-Jean recognizes the fundamental qualities common to the training of officers in all branches of the Canadian Forces and thereby seeks to weld a common understanding in matters of National Defence.

On entry into one of the Canadian Military Colleges applicants are enrolled as Regular Force Subordinate Officers in the Canadian Forces. Provision is made for the entry of a limited number of:

(a) Dominion cadets—the sons of persons who were killed, died, or are severely incapacitated as a result of service in a component of the Canadian Forces or the Canadian Merchant Marine during hostilities. Dominion cadets enter the Reserve Force and receive free tuition during the first academic year at a military college.

(b) Reserve cadets who pay tuition and other fees during the duration of the course.

On graduation from the Royal Military College of Canada subordinate officers are promoted to commissioned rank.

To be eligible for admission to a college, candidates must have reached their 16th, but not their 21st birthday on the first day of January preceding entrance with the exception of junior matriculation candidates for Collège militaire royal de Saint-Jean who must have reached their 16th but not their 20th birthday on the first day of January preceding entrance.

THE DEFENCE RESEARCH BOARD

The Defence Research Board is the agency in the Department of National Defence responsible for scientific research. It was created in 1947 by an amendment to the National Defence Act. It provides through the Chairman scientific advice to the Minister of National Defence and to the Canadian Forces.

The Board consists of a full-time Chairman and Vice-Chairman, five ex-officio members and a varying number of members selected from universities and industry appointed by the Governor-in-Council. The ex-officio members are the Deputy Minister of National Defence, the President of the National Research Council, the Chief of Defence Staff, the Vice Chief of Defence Staff and the Chief of Technical Services. The Chairman is the chief executive officer of the Board's research organization. He is a member of the Defence Council, which is the senior policy body of the Department of National Defence. The Vice-Chairman is an associate member.

The research organization consists of seven research establishments in which an intra-mural program of research specifically oriented toward military needs is carried out.

The Board also conducts an extra-mural research program through grants-in-aid of research to universities. These investigations are usually basic in nature and seek to provide new knowledge in fields from which important military developments are likely to arise.

Support is also provided to industry with the object of promoting and strengthening the research capability of Canada's defence industry. This is a program of applied research of defence interest. It is financed on a cost-sharing basis with industry with each, government and industry, providing fifty percent of the funds.

International collaboration by the Defence Research Board in defence science is active throughout the western world. A very active quadripartite organization with Britain, Australia and the U.S. has been built up to ensure the fullest utilization of defence scientific knowledge, resources and facilities of these countries. In addition bilateral agreements with several NATO nations serve to enhance the interchange of defence scientific and technical knowledge in areas of mutual interest.

The Board represents Canada on a number of specialist committees through which NATO'S scientific endeavours are progressed and coordinated. The Board also provides representation on the Commonwealth Defence Science Organization which fosters and promotes scientific exchanges between the countries of the Commonwealth. It maintains liaison offices in Washington, London and Paris

CANADIAN FLAGS AND BADGES

FLAG OF GOVERNOR GENERAL

In 1930 King George V approved the design of a Flag for the Governor General of Canada that would be symbolic of the position of the Governor General as the Sovereign's personal representative. The Flag so approved is of the following description: "On a blue field, the Royal Crest,—the Imperial Crown proper, thereon a lion statant-guardant or, "crowned proper—subscribed 'CANADA' in black on a yellow scroll."

THE NATIONAL FLAG

The National Flag of Canada, otherwise known as the Canadian Flag, was approved by Parliament and proclaimed by Her Majesty the Queen on February 15, 1965, and is described as a red flag of the proportions two by length and one by width, containing in its centre a white square the width of the flag, bearing a single red maple leaf.

The Flag is flown on land daily from sunrise to sunset at all federal government buildings, airports, and military bases and establishments within and outside Canada, and may appropriately be flown or displayed by individuals and organizations.

The Canada Shipping Act provides that the National Flag is the proper national colours for all Canadian ships and boats; and it is the flag flown on Canadian Naval vessels.

THE ROYAL UNION FLAG

The Royal Union Flag, generally known as the Union Jack, was approved by Parliament on December 18, 1964 for continued use in Canada as a symbol of Canada's membership in the Commonwealth of Nations and of her allegiance to the Crown. It will, where physical arrangements make it possible, be flown along with the National Flag at federal buildings, airports, and military bases and establishments within Canada on the date of the official observance of the Queen's birthday, the Anniversary of the Statute of Westminster (December 11th), and on the occasions of Royal Visits and certain Commonwealth gatherings in Canada.

THE ROYAL CANADIAN NAVY BADGE

The badge originally was approved by King George VI in April, 1945 with nine maple leaves in the design. In July, 1952, Her Majesty The Queen approved a revision to the design to include ten maple leaves and in March, 1956, the St. Edward's Crown replaced the Tudor Crown design used prior to December, 1952.

The badge is described as follows:

"Within a garland of ten gold maple leaves, a dark blue cartouche edged in gold charged in the centre with a foul anchor in gold; the whole ensigned by the Crown proper."

CANADIAN ARMY BADGE

The badge was approved by King George VI in 1947 and revised to introduce St Edward's Crown in 1954. It is for use by the Army as a whole on stationery, publications, and similar authorized use.

The badge is described as follows:

"Three hard maple leaves conjoined on one step upon two crossed Crusaders' swords points upwards, the whole ensigned by the Crown. (The maple leaves are red, the swords are natural colours, i.e. blades blue with guards and pommels in gold and the Crown proper)."

ROYAL CANADIAN AIR FORCE BADGE

The RCAF General Badge was approved by King George VI in January, 1943 and now includes the St. Edward's Crown in place of the Tudor Crown used prior to December, 1952.

The badge is described as follows:

"A roundel within a double circle inscribed with the motto "PER ARDUA AD ASTRA," the lower segment of the double circle charged with a single maple leaf; superimposed on the centre of the double circle and roundel an eagle volant affronté, the head to the sinister; below the circle a riband scroll bearing the words "ROYAL CANADIAN AIR FORCE" and ensigning the whole, the Crown. (The roundel is light blue, the double circle and scroll dark blue, reverse of the scroll, red. The motto and title, edges of the scroll and the double circle, the eagle and the maple leaf is all in gold; the Crown proper)."

MANITOBA FLAG

The flag of the Province of Manitoba was adopted under The Provincial Flag Act, assented to May 11th, 1965. The Act came into force by proclamation on May 12, 1966. Approved by Her Majesty Queen Elizabeth II, the flag design was prepared by the Garter King of Arms in accordance with heraldic laws and practice. The flag incorporates parts of the Royal Armorial Ensigns, namely the Union and Red Ensign; the badge in the fly of the flag is the shield of the Armorial Bearings of the Province of Manitoba granted by Royal Warrant on the tenth day of May, 1905.

Description:

A flag of the shade of red specified in the next following paragraph and the proportions two by length and one by width with the Union Jack occupying the upper quarter next the staff and with the shield of the armorial ensigns of the province centred in the half farthest from the staff.

British Admiralty Colour Code No. T1144 for nylon worsted bunting and No. T818A for other bunting.

NOVA SCOTIA FLAG

The official flag of the province of Nova Scotia is the blue cross of St. Andrew on a white field, with the Royal Lion mounted thereon. The flag was originally authorized by Charles I in 1625. In 1929, on petition of Nova Scotia, a Royal Warrant of King George V was issued, revoking the modern Arms and ordering that the original Arms granted by King Charles I be borne upon shields, banners and otherwise according to the laws of Arms. Since that time, the Nova Scotia Flag has been in continual use.

PRINCE EDWARD ISLAND FLAG

The official flag of the Province of Prince Edward Island was authorized by an Act of the Legislative Assembly (Chapter II, Laws of Prince Edward Island, 1964). The design of the flag is based on the Armorial Bearings of the Province granted by Royal Warrant on May 30, 1905. The design of the Flag is that part of the Arms contained within the Shield, but is of rectangular shape, with a fringe of alternating red and white. The Chief and charge of the Arms occupies the upper one-third of the flag, and the remainder of the Arms occupies the lower two-thirds. The proportions of the flag are six, four, and one-quarter in relation to the fly, the hoist, and the depth of the fringe. The Flag was flown for the first time at 9 a.m., September 1st, 1964 on the anniversary of the 1864 Charlottetown Conference.

PROVINCE OF ONTARIO FLAG

The flag of the Province of Ontario was adopted under the Flag Act of May 21, 1965. Approved by Her Majesty Queen Elizabeth II, the flag design was prepared by the Garter King of Arms in accordance with heraldic laws and practice. The flag incorporates parts of the Royal Armorial Ensigns, namely the Union and Red Ensign; the badge in the fly of the flag is the shield of the Armorial Bearings of the Province of Ontario granted by Royal Warrant on the 26th day of May, 1868.

The flag is of the proportions two by length and one by width, with the Union Jack occupying the upper quarter next the staff and the shield of the armoria bearings of the province centred in the half farthest from the staff.

PROVINCE OF QUEBEC FLAG

The official flag of the Province of Quebec was adopted by a Provincial Order-in-Council No. 72 on January 1, 1948. The flag thus adopted is generally known as the "fleurdelisé" flag. It is a white cross on a sky blue ground, with the fleur-de-lis in an upright position on the blue ground in each of the four corners of the flag.

PROVINCE OF SASKATCHEWAN

Saskatchewan's new flag was officially dedicated on September 22, 1969. The flag features the Armorial Bearing (Coat of Arms) in the upper quarter nearest the staff with the provincial floral emblem "the Prairie Lily" in the fly (the half farthest from the staff). The upper green portion represents Saskatchewan forests while the gold symbolizes prairie wheat fields. The basic design was adopted from the prize winning entry of Anthony Drake of Hodgeville from a province wide flag design competition that drew over 4,000 entries.

BRITISH COLUMBIA FLAG

Certain Armorial Ensigns were recorded in the College of Arms on March 31st. 1906, and registered on May 3rd 1906. "Three silver and blue wavy bars from the bottom of which a shining half sun in natural colours, under the Union Jack bearing in the centre a golden antique crown"

During a visit to England in 1960 the Hon. W. A. C. Bennett located the original design of the flag at the College of Arms in London. The display of this flag was authorized by Order in Council dated June 20th, 1960.

FISHERY REGULATIONS, GAME LAWS, CLOSED SEASONS, LICENCES, &c.

The Canadian Government has the sole legislative authority over the fisheries of Canada, both coastal and inland, under which laws are made for the protection and conservation of the fisheries in all the provinces. The provinces, however, have property rights in the non-tidal fisheries. Over a period of years various arrangements have been made between the Federal Govt. and the provinces dividing the administrative (but not the legislative) authority over fisheries. Under these arrangements the Federal Government not only legislates but also administers the fisheries in all Canadian tidal waters except those of Quebec. In the non-tidal waters of Canada the Federal Government administers the fisheries of the Yukon, Northwest Territories, Nova Scotia, New Brunswick, Prince Edward Island and Newfoundland. The non-tidal fisheries of the other provinces are administered by the provincial authorities who enforce, on behalf of the Federal Government, the Federal laws regulating the fisheries as such.

Fisheries in National Parks of Canada are under the administration of the National and Historic Parks Branch of the Federal Department of Indian Affairs and Northern Development, Ottawa.

For further information as to fisheries regulations apply to the Department of Fisheries, Ottawa, or, in the case of National Parks, to the National and Historic Parks Branch, Ottawa. For information as to fishing licence fees in any area apply to the administrative authority indicated above.

GAME LAWS

Migratory birds are protected under a Federal law known as the Migratory Birds Convention Act, administered by the Canadian Wildlife Service, Department of Indian Affairs and Northern Development, Ottawa. Enforcement of the Act is carried out by the Royal Canadian Mounted Police in co-operation with the provincial game authorities. This Act is based upon the Migratory Birds Treaty with the U.S.

With this exception, and except in National Parks, game laws are under the administration of the various provinces and territories.

A Federal law, the Game Export Act, passed in 1941, prohibits the export of game from any province or territory without permit from the province or territory. It has been proclaimed for all provinces and territories except Prince Edward Island.

Details as to closed seasons, licences, etc., are not given here, owing to the fact that regulations for the ensuing months are, in some cases, not available when this volume goes to press and where available are often subject to changes before the opening of the season.

Full information concerning the Federal laws mentioned above may be obtained by writing to the following address: Director, Canadian Wildlife Service, Ottawa; and respecting provincial game laws by writing to the addresses given below:

DEPARTMENT OF TRADE AND DEVELOPMENT

950 Yonge Street, Toronto

The Ontario Department of Trade and Development promotes trade and industrial development throughout the province.

Trade and Industry—An extensive development program is now being implemented throughout the province. An Ontario "trade crusade" to increase employment and increase the province's economic growth rate is underway. This program includes sales opportunity missions to various parts of the world; manufacturing opportunities shows at which imported components are displayed so that Ontario firms can obtain new business; sponsorship of Ontario manufacturers in international trade fairs; and a public education campaign to encourage manufacturers to get out and export, and consumers to purchase more Canadian-made goods. The department is also active in promoting licensing arrangements and branch plants. Ontario Development Corporation—This Crown corporation provides capital funds and working capital to small business and offers an advisory service to firms. It also provides forgivable loans to certain companies locating in slow growth areas of the province.

Housing—An active public housing program is being carried out by the Ontario Housing Corporation.

Improvement Districts (Counties 1, Districts 16)	17
Total Local Municipalities	921
Counties (43)*	37
Metropolitan Toronto	1
Ottawa-Carleton Region	1
Total Incorporated Municipalities	960

The northern portion of the Province of Ontario is divided into 11 Districts and the southern portion into 43 Counties. The union of the following counties, Leeds-Grenville, Northumberland-Durham, Prescott-Russell and Stormont-Dundas and Glengarry reduces the county administrations to 38 distinct units for local government. The districts, unlike counties, are not organized for municipal purposes and as a result, the 224 incorporated municipalities contained therein are not united for municipal administration.

With the exception of the 27 cities, the 6 municipalities comprising the municipality of metropolitan Toronto and the 6 separated towns which are located within counties, the remaining 657 local municipalities in counties are united for administration in the counties of which they form part. This relationship is for the purpose of the administration of inter-related interests such as education, roads, welfare and administration of justice. Members of the County Councils are composed of the reeves of all the local municipalities within the county and in certain cases the deputy reeves.

The 6 separated towns are: Gananoque, Ingersoll, Prescott, St. Marys, Smiths Falls, Trenton.

POLICE VILLAGES

In addition to the organized villages listed elsewhere in the Ontario section of the Canadian Almanac, there are some 155 police villages.

A police village is run by a Board of Trustees elected by the residents. The Board of Trustees runs its local affairs, but cannot levy any taxes or make by-laws which involve the borrowing of money. It has to send in a requisition to the authorities of the township of which it is part for any finances it requires, such as for local improvements or lighting or village constabulary.

*There are 43 Counties, some of which are united for purposes of local government as follows:
Leeds and Grenville,
Northumberland and Durham,
Prescott and Russell,
Stormont, Dundas and Glengarry.

METROPOLITAN TORONTO

The municipality of Metropolitan Toronto, by act of legislature, (R.S.O. 1960 Chapter 260) controls the following utilities: certain roads in Metropolitan Toronto, Toronto Transit Commission, Metropolitan School Board, Metropolitan Toronto Planning Board, Works Department, Police Department.

The areas affected are City of Toronto, Borough of Etobicoke, Borough of Scarborough, Borough of York, Borough of East York, Borough of North York.

DATES OF MUNICIPAL ELECTIONS

Municipal elections in Ontario are held at various dates provided for by The Municipal Act, Chapter 249, R.S.O. 1960, sections 43-51.

Section 43 provides that the nominations shall be held at noon on the last Monday in December except when the last Monday is Christmas day in which case nominations shall be held on the preceding Friday, and the date for polling shall be the first Monday in January; unless council under authority of section 44, not later than November 1st, passes a by-law fixing dates during the period November 15th to January 2nd both inclusive for nominations and elections, said dates to be other than a Sunday or the 24th, 25th or 31st of December and provided the day fixed for nominations is not less than seven days prior to the day fixed for polling, in force until repealed, but no appeal or amendment after 1st of November of any year.

In addition, when new municipalities are erected, the Municipal Board may set the date for the holding of their first elections.

QUALIFICATIONS FOR ELECTORS IN FEDERAL AND PROVINCIAL ELECTIONS

ELECTIONS FOR THE FEDERAL HOUSE OF COMMONS

According to the Canada Elections Act, and subject to certain exceptions, the general rule as to the qualifications of electors at a Federal election is that every person in Canada, man or woman, is qualified to vote and entitled to be registered as an elector on the list of electors for the polling division in which such person ordinarily resides at the time of the issuing of the writ ordering a Federal election in the electoral district if such person

(a) is of the full age of twenty-one years or will attain such age on or before polling day at such election;
(b) is a Canadian citizen or other British subject;
(c) in the case of a British subject other than a Canadian citizen, has been ordinarily resident in Canada for the twelve months immediately preceding polling day at such election; and (d) at a by-election only, continues to be ordinarily resident in the electoral district until polling day at such by-election.

Among persons disqualified are prisoners, and persons under restraint owing to mental disease.

Whenever an election is ordered an entire new list of electors is prepared, according to the Canada Elections Act, under the general direction of the Chief Electoral Officer, and supervision of a returning officer who is appointed for each electoral district. There are two classes of polling divisions which are called Urban and Rural. Generally speaking urban polling divisions are those comprised in incorporated cities and towns of over 5,000 population, the other polling divisions are rural. In urban polling divisions, a pair of enumerators, representing different political interests, is appointed for each polling division. They make a house-to-house visitation after the issue of the writ for the appropriate pending election, to secure the necessary information to complete a list of electors for their polling division. In rural polling divisions, the list is prepared by one rural enumerator. Writs for a general election are issued about two months before the date fixed for polling day, and at by-elections writs may be issued about 6 weeks before polling day.

Chief Electoral Officer, J.-M. Hamel, Ottawa.

CANADIANS TRAVELLING ABROAD

UNITED STATES IMMIGRATION REGULATIONS

Every person desiring to enter the United States for any purpose whatever, even for a limited time, must have (1) a passport from the Government to which such person owes allegiance, or other acceptable travel document, and (2) a visa issued by an American Consular officer; excepting Canadians and certain British subjects or Commonwealth citizens who may enter without passports or visas under certain conditions (for details see below).

Visas are of two kinds: (1) Immigrant visas, which are for permanent or indefinite residence in the United States, and (2) Non-immigrant visas, which are for temporary entry into the United States for definite short periods for business, pleasure, transit through, as a student, crewman, et cetera.

All persons applying for a nonimmigrant visa at United States consular offices in Canada must present a passport or other travel document valid for at least six months beyond the contemplated initial period of stay in the United States except Canadian citizens and certain British subjects or Commonwealth citizens.

BORDER CROSSING REGULATIONS

Canadian nationals and certain British subjects or Commonwealth citizens or citizens of Ireland, are not required to present passports and visas when entering the United States temporarily and a passport shall not be required of such a national or subject except after a visit outside of the Western Hemisphere. Satisfactory evidence of identity and citizenship may be required and would comprise Canadian or appropriate passport valid or expired, landed immigrant cards, Canadian birth or baptismal certificates, or Canadian certificates of naturalization.

Canadian citizens domiciled in Canada, entering the United States temporarily from other than the Western Hemisphere, do not require visas but must be in possession of unexpired passports.

Canadian citizens not domiciled in Canada, entering the United States temporarily, must present a valid passport.

Certain British subjects or Commonwealth citizens entering the United States from other than the Western Hemisphere, do not require visas but must be in possession of unexpired passports.

In addition, everyone should be in possession of evidence establishing that he is in fact a bona fide temporary visitor. Letters of reference from the applicant's employer or husband's employer, or bank manager if in business for self, are the most satisfactory. Those desiring further information regarding entry requirements may call in person or write to the nearest U.S. Consulate. For American Consulates in Canada, see Index.

American citizens do not require passports to re-enter the United States from Canada but must satisfy the immigration officials at the port of entry that they are in fact United States citizens.

CANADIAN PASSPORT AND VISA INFORMATION

Passports are issued in Canada at the Passport Office, Ottawa. They are valid for five years only and may not be renewed. When applying for a new passport, the old passport must be enclosed. Passport application forms are available at most Post Offices, travel agencies and banks throughout Canada and at the Passport Office itself. New passport requirements effective January 1969 now require applicants to submit proof of Canadian citizenship in support of applications. Applicants born in Canada must submit Birth or Citizenship Certificate. Those born outside Canada must submit Citizenship or Naturalization Certificate. Citizenship Certificates are available through the office of the Registrar of Canadian Citizenship, Ottawa.

Visas when required as detailed hereunder are obtainable from the representative in Canada of the country to be visited.

Canadians visiting the United States, Puerto Rico or the U.S. Virgin Islands for six months or less do not require a passport but proof of citizenship if arriving from a Western Hemisphere country; they require a passport but not a visa if arriving from a country outside the Western Hemisphere. Those entering the United States for the purpose of engaging in gainful employment should obtain both passport and visa.

Valid passports but no visas are normally required by Canadians visiting Commonwealth countries and most Commonwealth territories. A few Commonwealth countries or territories do not require either a passport or visa and a few require both passport and entry permit.

Valid passports but no visas are required by Canadians visiting the following countries for a period not exceeding three months: Argentina, Austria, Belgium, Bolivia (Tourist Card required), Chile, Denmark, Finland, France, French Guiana, Greece, Guadeloupe, Haiti, Iceland, Ireland, Israel, Italy, Japan, Liechtenstein, Luxembourg, Martinique, Mexico (Tourist Card required), Monaco, Morocco, Netherlands, Norway, San Marino, Spain, Sweden, Switzerland, Tunis, Turkey, Uruguay.

Valid passports but no visas are required by Canadians visiting Portugal for a period not exceeding two months.

As regulations are subject to change Canadians travelling to these or other countries should communicate with the nearest representative of the country they wish to visit, for appropriate advice.

Citizens of Commonwealth countries in Canada who are not Canadians should apply for passports or renewals to the High Commissioner representing their country in Ottawa.

Canadians abroad may obtain passport service from the nearest Canadian diplomatic mission (Embassy, High Commissioner's Office), or from the nearest Canadian Consular or Trade Office.

ESTIMATED POPULATION OF CANADA BY PROVINCES AT JUNE 1, 1969

The estimated population of Canada at June 1, 1969, was 21,061,000. This figure results from a population accounting which starts with the 1966 Census, adds births and immigration, and deducts deaths and an estimate of emigration based largely on United States and United Kingdom government statistics of immigration from Canada. For each province the same general method is used as for Canada. For purposes of estimating interprovincial migration, Family Allowances statistics are used.

The 1969 estimate is distributed by provinces as follows:

Canada	21,061,000
Newfoundland	514,000
Prince Edward Island	110,000
Nova Scotia	763,000
New Brunswick	625,000
Québec	5,984,000
Ontario	7,452,000
Manitoba	979,000
Saskatchewan	959,000
Alberta	1,561,000
British Columbia	2,067,000
Yukon	15,000

CANADIAN GOVERNMENT ANNUITIES

The Government Annuities System was set up in 1908 to encourage persons resident or domiciled in Canada to save for their old age by the purchase of deferred annuities and to enable older citizens to stretch out their accumulated savings by the purchase of immediate annuities. Canadian Government Annuities are payable for life and may be guaranteed for a period of years certain. Under deferred annuities, premiums are returned with interest if the annuitant dies before the annuity commences. The maximum amount of annuity obtainable is $1,200.00 a year. It may be obtained with an income reduction of $75.00 a month when Old Age Security begins, thus fitting in with the Old Age Security Act, in which event the maximum is the actuarial equivalent of $1,200 a year.

Individual contracts are in most instances eligible for registration as Retirement Savings Plans to get tax exemption on premiums in accordance with Section 79B of the Income Tax Act.

Employers may operate their pension plans through the purchase of Government Annuities for, or on behalf of, their employees. There were 1,398 such pension plans in operation, covering 181,864 working employees. In addition, there are 81,067 individual deferred annuity contracts in force. Annuity in the annual amount of $59,042,042 is being paid under 101,987 individual contracts and group certificates.

The premiums are moderate and annuities may be purchased through Canadian Government Annuities offices in 33 communities across Canada, or directly from Head Office.

For full particulars apply to C. R. McCord, Director of Annuities, Canada Department of Labour, Ottawa.

THE VICTORIA CROSS

The Victoria Cross was instituted by Queen Victoria at the close of the Crimean campaign, 1856. It is a Maltese cross, made of gun metal. with a Royal Crest in the centre and underneath it an escroll bearing the inscription "For Valour", and is awarded, irrespective of rank, to members of any branch of Her Majesty's services, either in the Imperial Forces or those of any British dominion, colony, dependency or protectorate, the Mercantile Marine, nurses or staffs of hospitals, or to civilians of either sex while serving in either regular or temporary capacity during naval, military, or air force operations. It is awarded only "for most conspicuous bravery or some daring or pre-eminent act of valour or self-sacrifice or extreme devotion to duty in the presence of the enemy." For additional conduct of similar bravery, a Bar is added. The ribbon was formerly red for the Army and blue for the Navy, but is now crimson for all services. Since June 17th, 1943, the financial responsibility has been assumed by the Canadian Government. After 1968 the annuity is $300, payable $25.00 monthly.

HONOURS (CANADA)

For some years after Confederation awards were made of a few hereditary honours and some knighthoods and companionships in orders of chivalry, and this policy continued until the end of the first Great War.

On May 22, 1919, during the premiership of the Rt. Hon. Robert L. Borden, a resolution adopted by the House of Commons requested His Majesty to refrain from granting titular honours to Canadian citizens in the future. This policy was reversed in 1933 when, during the premiership of the Rt. Hon. R. B. Bennett, the Canadian Government recommended a number of such awards, which were duly granted on New Year's Day, 1934. Although titular honours were again conferred in 1935, the new administration which took office later that year under the premiership of the Rt. Hon. Mackenzie King revived the previous policy of the Government of 1919, and no titular honours have been recommended or awarded since that time.

On July 24, 1942, a Special Committee on Honours and Decorations reported to the House as follows:

"As a result of their deliberations your Committee desire to make the following recommendations:

(1) That His Majesty's subjects domiciled or ordinarily resident in Canada be eligible for the award of Honours and Decorations, including awards in the Orders of Chivalry, which do not involve titles.

(2) That His Majesty's Government in Canada consider a submission to His Majesty the King, of proposals for the establishment of an Order limited in number but not involving a title, for which His Majesty's subjects domiciled or ordinarily resident in Canada shall alone be eligible."

During the second Great War a large number of decorations were awarded to members of the armed forces and to civilians for war service. On July 1, 1946 the last Canadian honours list terminated decorations for war service for civilians. No awards in orders of chivalry have since been given to Canadian civilians. Recommendations are made from time to time for the award to civilians of decorations in recognition of exceptional bravery.

In 1967 Prime Minister L. B. Pearson announced the creation of the Order of Canada.

THE ORDER OF CANADA

The Right Honourable L. B. Pearson announced in a statement to the House of Commons on April 17th, 1967, the creation of the Order of Canada. The Centennial of Confederation provided a particularly appropriate time to institute the Order of Canada and the first awards were made on July 6th, 1967.

The Order of Canada comprises three awards which, when worn by Canadians, take precedence over all other awards except the Victoria Cross and the George Cross: (1) Companions of the Order of Canada (2) The Medal of Courage (3) The Medal of Service. Fifty Companions were appointed in 1967 and up to 25 Companions of the Order may be named in any following year, but the total number of living Companions must not exceed 150. The number of Medals of Courage that may be awarded is limited only by the high standards which the Order demands. The Governor General, Chancellor of the Order, awarded the Medal of Service to nearly 100 persons in 1967 and may award up to a maximum of 50 during any following year.

The Order was conceived to fill the need for a distinctly Canadian system of honours and awards to be used as a means of recognizing outstanding merit, conspicuous gallantry or distinguished public service in all fields of endeavour. In conformity with its distinctly Canadian character, the Order includes no titles and confers no special privileges, hereditary or otherwise. Awards are made solely on the basis of merit. A Companion of the Order of Canada is entitled to place the letters "C.C." after his name. A person to whom the Medal of Courage is awarded, may use the letters "C.M.", and a Medal of Service holder may similarly place the letters "S.M." after his name.

The Governor General is, by virtue of that office, Chancellor and Principal Companion of the Order and is charged with the administration of the Order. He is aided by the Advisory Council of the Order which comprises:

a) the Chief Justice of Canada (Chairman)
b) the Clerk of the Privy Council
c) the Under Secretary of State
d) the Chairman of the Canada Council
e) the President of the Royal Society of Canada
f) the President of the Association of Universities and Colleges of Canada. The Secretary to the Governor General is, by his office, Secretary General of the Order and Secretary of the Advisory Council.

Any person or organization may make nominations for appointment to the Order by writing to the Registrar of the Order of Canada at Government House, Ottawa. Nominations are placed before the Advisory Council for consideration so that lists of those nominees who, in the opinion of the Council, are of greatest merit can be submitted to the Governor General. Appointments to membership in the Order are made by the Sovereign of the Order on the recommendation of the Governor General, Chancellor of the Order, under an Instrument sealed with the Seal of the Order.

WEIGHTS, MEASURES, AND STANDARDS IN CANADA

The Weights and Measures Act, R.S.C. 1952, Chapter 292, Sections 9, 12 and 13, establishes the standards of length, weight and capacity for Canada. Multiples or fractions in addition to those shown below can be found by referring to Sections 9, 10, 11, 12 and 13. The standard measure of length is the yard; one third of the yard is the foot; the twelfth part of the foot is an inch; and the cord contains one hundred and twenty-eight cubic feet. The standard measure of weight is the pound (avoirdupois); one-sixteenth of the pound is an ounce (437½ grains); one seven thousandth of the pound is a grain: a cental or hundred weight is one hundred pounds; a ton is two thousand pounds; an ounce troy is four hundred and eighty grains. The standard measure of capacity, for liquids or otherwise, is the gallon that contains ten Canadian standard pounds weight of distilled water weighed in dry air against brass weights of density 0.30346 of a pound per cubic inch with the water and air at sixty-two degrees Fahrenheit and the barometer at thirty inches. The quart contains one-fourth of the gallon; the pint contains one-eighth of the gallon; a bushel contains eight gallons; and the hundred and sixtieth part of the gallon by volume is a fluid ounce.

IMPERIAL MEASURE

The gallon, sometimes known as the "Imperial Gallon," contains 277.42 cubic inches. This compares with the American gallon of 231 cubic inches (liquid) and 268.80 cubic inches (dry). The more common comparison between liquid gallons places the Canadian about 20% greater in volume than the U.S. The common conversion fraction is 6 to 5 in favour of the Canadian gallon.

FRUIT, VEGETABLES AND HONEY ACT AND REGULATIONS

Chapter 62 of the Statutes, 1935

The provisions of this Act are intended to promote orderly marketing throughout the fruit, vegetable and honey industries and to assist in the settlement of disputes through the medium of an Arbitration Board. The Act is applicable to interprovincial or foreign trade only.

There follows a brief summary of the provisions of the Act and Regulations:

1. Establishment of grades or standards of quality for fruits, vegetables and honey.
2. Prescribes conditions relative to inspection, grading, marking of packages, shipment, and sale of fruit, vegetables and honey produced within or without Canada.
3. Establishment of standard packages for various kinds of fruits, vegetables and honey.
4. Provides for the detention of fruit, vegetables, honey or packages in respect of which an offence under the Act or Regulations has been committed.
5. Prescribes penalties for contravention of any provisions of the Act or Regulations.
6. Licensing of brokers, commission agents and dealers, handling fruits and vegetables in interprovincial and international trade.
7. Provides for a commercial fruit and vegetale inspection service at both shipping point and destination for which appropriate fees are charged for certificates issued,
8. Registration of honey packers and persons assembling honey and to prescribe fees for honey inspection certification and licensing.
9. Provides for the inspection and certification of imported produce for which a fee is charged for customs clearance purposes or to assist in determining if contract stipulations have been met.
10. The compulsory inspection and certification of fruits, vegetables and honey exported out of Canada for which a fee is charged.
11. Provides for amendment and addition to regulations through Ministerial Order.

THE CANADA GRADES FOR SHELL EGGS

The grade of an egg is determined by three factors—interior quality, shell appearance and weight.

Canada Grade A1—excellent interior quality; shell clean, normal in shape and sound in construction; (an optional grade).

Canada Grade A—A very good interior quality, shell clean, practically normal in shape and sound in construction.

The weight divisions for Canada Grade A1 and Canada Grade A—

Extra Large Size—each egg weighs at least two and one-quarter ounces.
Large Size —each egg weighs at least two ounces
Medium Size —each egg weighs at least one and three-quarter ounces, but less than two ounces.
Small Size —each egg weighs at least one and one-half ounces, but less than one and three-quarter ounces.
Peewee Size —each egg weighs less than one and one-half ounces. (This size does not apply to Canada Grade A1).

Canada Grade B—standard for interior quality less than Canada Grade A; shell must be reasonably clean and may be slightly abnormal in shape, but of sound construction; each egg weighs at least one and three-quarter ounces.

Canada Grade C—standard for interior quality less than Canada Grade B; shell may be dirty but not cracked; no minimum weight. (Canada Grade A Small Size or Canada Grade A Peewee Size may be packed in this grade.)

Canada Grade Cracks—meets standards for at least Canada Grade C, except shell is cracked, but contents not leaking.

MEASUREMENT OF SHIP TONNAGE

Followed by the British Board of Trade; applying to all ships in the British Merchant Service, including Canadian registered vessels.

GROSS TONNAGE is the unit of volume containing 100 cubic feet in the internal volume of a vessel under the tonnage deck to which is added: (1) the 'tween deck space, if any, above the tonnage deck. (2) the volume of permanently closed-in spaces above the upper deck available for cargo stores, or for passengers and crew and (3) any excess of hatchways.

NET OR REGISTER TONNAGE. The Net or Register Tonnage is the Gross Tonnage as found above less deductions for crew space, stores, navigation spaces, allowance for propelling power and other deductions allowable under the Merchant Shipping Act.

DEADWEIGHT TONNAGE is the amount of cargo, equipment and effects on board, and is expressed in tons of 2240 lbs. each; or alternatively it is the difference in the displacement at a given draft and the displacement of the vessel "lightship" with water in boilers to working level and ready for steam but with none of the above mentioned items on board.

UNIT	FOR THE MEASURE OF:
Volt	Electromotive Force (E.M.F.) or Electrical Pressure = the electromotive force that steadily applied to a conductor whose resistance is one ohm will produce a current of one ampere.
Ohm	Resistance = the resistance offered to the passage of a current of electricity by a thread of mercury 106 cm. long and 1 sq. mm. cross section at the temperature of melting ice.
Ampere	Current = the current 1 volt will drive through 1 ohm.

JUDGES

Canada:

In Canada there are two broad classes of courts—superior courts and county (or district) courts. Judges of the superior courts are addressed "The Honourable Mr. Justice ...." and judges of the county or district courts are addressed "His Honour Judge ________". The Supreme Court of Canada and the Exchequer Court of Canada are also superior courts. The Yukon Territorial Court and the Territorial Court for the Northwest Territories are superior courts.

There are two classes of Chief Justices—the Chief Justice of Canada or of a province on the one hand and the Chief Justice of a court on the other. The Chief Justice of the Supreme Court of Canada is styled the Chief Justice of Canada; similarly, there is a Chief Justice for each of the provinces. Other courts in the provinces, namely, the trial courts, usually have a Chief Justice also and he is known as the Chief Justice of that court.
